Imponderable Ether.
Two Jacks Fight.
A Sick Whale.
Surprising a Rebel.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

SIR OLIVER LODGE says the ether is the most important reality of the physical universe. Life and mind are associated with matter only indirectly, through the ether, says he, and the ether is primarily man's habitation, not pseudo "solid matter" earth houses, automobiles and money that we call the real world.

Matter reduced to atoms, is only electric particles revolving at frightful speed around an electric centre. The real thing is ether.

Science tells us that the ether is like a great stream of water, flowing on forever, and matter like a fisherman's net spread across the stream through which the ether flows; trat ether is essential to the dosmic scheme; that Newton's law of gravitation should not work without it, and that ether is the only solid reality in the realm of ideas—but for the average man it is hard to conceive of ether as a reality. It seems as unreal as the fourth dimension.

Our minds are adjusted to the work we have to do, which isn't big or very important.

For tonight's fight of the two Jacks, Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, the modest box office price for a front seat is $27.50. Our intellectual citizenship is willing to pay much more, it is said that the first five front rows are in the hands of speculators, at $125 each.

This news is made public by the government, which wants income tax from a show of this kind and asks further information.

Suppose Sir Oliver Lodge were to lecture on his theory of the ether and charge $125 for front row seats, how many would he sell?

If told that the sickness of a sperm whale in the Atlantic ocean could set up an ancient sailor man in a comfortable chicken business, you might say "impossible." But it happened.

When whales don't feel well, lumps of a substance called "ambergris," valuable to perfume manufacturers, form inside of them.

Jeremiah Pratt, 74 years old, lookout on a schooner, saw gulls hovering over a big lump of ambergris worth $12,500. With that money Sailor Pratt will retire to a chicken ranch and thousands of women will go around perfumed by the ambergris.

Sandino, leader of Nicaragua "rebels," was perhaps right in his idea that Uncle Sam has no business dictating to Nicaragua, but he was wrong in his judgment of airplanes in war.

Sandino, who called himself "the wild beast of the mountains," told his followers that Uncle Sam's airplanes and bombs "only made a noise." A few bombs dropped by American fliers killed 200 of his followers, according to late reports, and

RHODE ISLAND ROARS WELCOME TO YOUTHFUL 'VIKING OF THE CLOUDS'

Providence, July 21.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, stripling of the skies and pioneer trail-blazer of the New York-to-Paris aerial route, flew his "Spirit of St. Louis" over Providence today, with the eyes of thousands focussed upon him and his silver-glinting monoplane.

On the second leg of his nation-wide tour, Lindbergh took off from Brainard Field at Hartford at 12:22 p. m. for Quonset Point landing field, 20 miles outside of Providence, but before proceeding to the point, he put the famed monoplane through its ethereal paces over the city.

Grinning in his elation at again taking the air, Lindbergh pulled open his "gun," roared down the straightaway and lifted his "Spirit of St. Louis" toward the azure sky.

Ten minutes later, with his following planes wide open in an attempt to keep up, the blonde Viking was

PASSENGERS LANDED AFTER NIGHT IN FOG

Many hours late, having been forced to lie at anchor all night off Point Allerton, the steamship Dorothy Bradford from Provincetown, with 600 passengers on board, was the first of the fog-bound passenger ships to reach her dock shortly before ten o'clock today.

Three vessels are known to have gone ashore on Cape Cod and others are believed to be in peril by the thick blanket of mist that has paralyzed the New England coast for nearly four days.

Only a brisk shore wind will roll back the heavy veil that is surging in from the Atlantic.

The scene on Long Wharf when the Bradford crept phantom like from out of the background of gray was as though her passengers had gone through a shipwreck instead of being anchored with all the comforts of a hotel almost within a stone's throw of the rocks of Allerton.

Washington, July 21.—High officials of the Anti-Saloon League disclaimed responsibility for the prediction of Wayne B. Wheeler, the legue's general counsel, that "dry" Democrats in the South will bolt if Governor Alfred E. Smith is nominated for the Presidency.

In a statement issued jointly by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Dr. Arthur Barton, both League officials, it was explained that the prediction was merely the opinion of Wheeler.

The statement was issued here and bore a footnote stating that Wheeler had requested Bishop Cannon and Dr. Barton to "disclaim for him the construction placed by

New York, July 21 (I.N.S.) — Jack Dempsey today telephoned personal friends who had lost money on him in the Tunney fight, telling them to "shoot the works" on him. "I didn't tell them to bet on me last year, but they did, and I've always felt badly about it," Dempsey explained. "I'm set now and I want these fellows to get their money back."

New York, July 21.—Thousands of frenzied fight fans battled battalions of police in a mass attack on the Yankee Stadium today in a mad attempt to get tickets for the Dempsey-Sharkey contest tonight.

FEAR RIOT AND DEATH IN VANZETTI PARADE

Declaring that rioting and death might result from a parade of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers through the streets of Boston, Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley today was the storm centre of the hearing before the street commissioners where friends of the condemned pair sought the parade permit.

While the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, aided by a Charlestown clergyman, a union labor man and a lawyer, fought for the permit, Sacco and Vanzetti extended their hunger strike at State Prison to 105 hours.

A box containing a pitifully few trinkets, wrapped and addressed to the medical examiner, and bearing the one word, "Discouraged," reposed on the table in their combination living and sleeping room.

Nearby was a note signed by both, stating that they could not continue to live the way they were doing.

Clarence Chamberlin, pilot of the first non-stop plane to carry a passenger across the Atlantic, arrives Saturday morning in Boston.

"HAVE 'EM CLEAR THE HUB RUNWAYS"
Sergeant O'Connor is shown bidding Col. Charles A. Lindbergh goodbye as the latter hops off for New England. The hero of the air cautioned flying officials that unless the runways at the airport are kept clear Friday he will not land. He risks no injury to the public.

BOSTON'S OWN HERO COMING, TOO
Lieut. Albert Hegenberger, of Boston, and Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, who flew over the Pacific to Hawaii in the first non-stop flight, are due in Boston Friday night and will take part in Saturday's big celebration.

LINDY GREETED AT PROVIDENCE

over Springfield, where he dipped the "Spirit," dove down to within 200 feet of the pavement, dropped a message and zoomed up again.

He spent nearly ten minutes in stunting over Springfield, then headed for Providence on the other line of his angle flight.

The entire business section of Providence was jammed with spectators as "Lindy" passed over and manoeuvred for ten minutes above the roofs.

Traffic halted, drivers gaped up into the blue canopy, policemen on directing posts dropped their arms and raised their eyes.

Pedestrians struggled for locations of clear vision and autos bumped the cars in front as the chauffeurs halted in the blockade and sought to obtain a quick, even if careless, glimpse of the youth riding above.

But, if the city itself was crowded, the field at Quonset presented a gathering even more huge and massed.

THRONGS GREET IDOL.

All day long, from the first peep of dawn until the time that Lindbergh was expected to land, the throngs had been pouring in, by automobile, by bus and afoot, until the landing field was covered over its every inch of ground reserved for spectators.

From Boston and the hamlets to the north, from far down along the shores of Narragansett, and from thee West, even beyond the State border, the throng crowded into Providence, to be ready for "Lindy's" arrival shortly after noon.

It was a picnic crowd, even to the lunch boxes that many of the arrivals carried, but lunching was a bit nervous as the watchers and listeners remained on the alert for the piercing blast from the Hope Reservoir whistle.

This blast was to announce first sight of the silver glint in the southwest sky denoting the approach of Lindbergh, riding high on his fame in the "Spirit of St. Louis," the Ryan monoplane that took him to Paris.

Ralph H. Wheelock, of the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company in the role of municipal signaller was to take his post on the pinnacle of Turks Head Building soon after noon, armed with a telescope.

At the first glimpse of the superbirdman in his silver plane, Wheelock was to signal to the man in charge of the reservoir siren and the raucous notes of that big whistle will start bedlam, as every building, factory and spire boasting any kind of a noise maker in the form of horn, siren or bell has been instructed to join in the mad welcome to "Lindy."

All Rhode Island was on the qui vive. The arms of the State were spread wide to give the country's idol a fervent embrace. His name was on every tongue today and his clean, courageous achievement and his reputation for boyish reserve and modesty and his faculty for doing and saying just the right thing, have warmed the cockles of the public's heart.

WILL CIRCLE CITY.

According to arrangements, Lindbergh was to circle over this city about ten minutes in order to give the concourse of sightseers a change to see his famous plane in action. He was to be received by Mayor James E. Dunne, members of the City Council and other dignitaries.

The flying ace was to conveyed by motor under escort of a big detail of motorcycle police to City Hall in this city, a distance of twenty miles. After a public reception Lindy was to visit Roger Williams Park, where he will be presented by Mayor Dunne to Governor Aram J. Pothier and State officials.

He is to be presented with a chest of silver by the City of Providence. His visit here is the second in his good will tour of seventy-five cities throughout the country. Hartford, Con[illegible] was the first.

[illegible] plaudits of thousands of ad[illegible] in the Nutmeg State were [illegible]nging in his ears when he [illegible] for the Rhode Island bound-

State Constabulary and National Guardsmen assisted by details from the Providence department policed the streets and highways. Adjutant General Arthur C. Cole issued a statement calling upon the public to co-operate in order to avoid confusion and mishap and to make the Lindbergh welcome the success planned.

Busses carried sightseers lacking autos to the landing field. There was an early scramble for the airport as the desire to see "Lindy" make a landing was strong among young and old.

Crowds were on their way early, confident that the weather forecaster's promise of a fair day with a cool north wind would stand the test.

No pains or expense were spared by the committees made up of members of the city government and the Chamber of Commerce working jointly.

It sure was a red letter day for Providence and for the State.

Hub All Prepared for Welcome to Lindy

Boston will literally roar its welcome at Lindy tomorrow afternoon. As the ace of all aces lands at the Boston airport, a myriad of bells, whistles, sirens and what-nots will let loose their broadsides of noises to acclaim the city's greeting to the greatest of world fliers.

Colonel Lindbergh is expected to reach this city about 2 o'clock. Four stops will be made on the way to the Parkman Bandstand, where the first official welcoming exercises will take place. The stops include one at Meridian street, East Boston, where Lindbergh will receive a bouquet from Lawrence J. Flaherty Post, American Legion, at its headquarters; another at the Chelsea Naval Hospital, where Colonel Lindbergh will visit the disabled war veterans.

He also will stop at the Charlestown Navy Yard, where the colonel will be presented with a picture of the famous ship "Old 'Ironsides," and the fourth stop in Memorial Drive on the Cambridge side of the Charles River so that Cambridge may be afforded an opportunity of greeting the flyer.

When the exercises are concluded Colonel Lindbergh will be escorted to the State House where he will be greeted by Governor Fuller at a formal reception. Following this he will go immediately to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel for a two-hour rest preceeding the exercises at the Arena in the evening.

While Boston will be paying her glamorous and enthusiastic tribute to the colonel tomorrow afternoon, however, two other heroes of the air will be arriving at the same airport. These are Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger.

The two transpacific flyers will arrive at the airport about 5 or 5:30.

An entire squadron of Army Reserve aviators will fly here this afternoon to take part in the reception exercises Friday. The aviators are members of the 322d Pursuit Squadron, an Army Air Corps reserve unit, which has been in training under Regular Army officers at Concord, N. H., since July 10.

finement and ordered to pay a fine of $700.

Former Sergeant Edward W. Isbester was given 15 months and a $700 fine. Edward Carlon drew 18 months straight, and William (Ned) O'Keefe 15 months.

Ex-Mayor Quigley, who was indicted with the other defendants, but on whose case two juries disagreed, was in court with scores of other Chelsea residents. After the sentences were reimposed, there was much handshaking and the saying of farewells, and the four prisoners were then taken in charge by deputy U. S. marshals. They will go to East Cambridge jail today, and within 48 hours or thereabouts will start for Atlanta.

None of the women relatives of the convicted men were in court their farewells having been said in private apparently.

It is almost two years to a day since indictments were returned in the famous Chelsea rum conspiracy cases, in which there were originally 80 defendants. The prosecution was started by Assistant U. S. Attorney Elihu D. Stone, who was present today. Leo A. Rogers, chief defense counsel, stated the fines imposed on Isbester and Thomas Quigley would be paid so they can obtain a parole.

Dead Calm Over Hub; No Flags as Heroes Come

WAKE UP, BOSTON! LIGHT UP! DRESS UP!
Fling out your banners, let them fly
Skyward and seaward, high and wide . . .

Only a few hours until those young gods of the sky drop down into our humdrum midst, and not a strip of bunting, not a fluttering banner shows Boston recks aught of their coming.

Summer street, its entire length, Congress, Devonshire, State, Court, Washington, crowded with their towering office structures, have not the least sign of a joyous greeting for those men. No thought of their terrible hours of agony gouging a perilous way through fog and ice, sleet and rain to plant the banner of American commercial supremacy in lands oversea.

TOOTS NOT ENOUGH.

The French, the Germans, the British, had the kind of imagination that could visualize such a mighty accomplishment as was that of Lindbergh, of Chamberlin, of Byrd. These boys were not of them, but they made them theirs. Now they come back to us, with our own Hegenberger and his mate, Maitland. They come unto their own and their own receive them not.

Tomorrow there'll be excitement and confusion. There'll be crowds and there'll be much tooting of horns by autoists, who will imagine that such a stupendous effort as touching a button fulfills their debt of tribute to heroism and real achievement.

SAME OLD STUFF

But back of the crowded faces along the line of parade what will the air gods see? Stately modern office buildings, cold in their indifference; proud churches, rigid in their self-satisfaction; store fronts boarded up and barricaded lest pressing mobs smash windows and add to the annoyance of an interruption of trade; a City Hall decked with rather soiled bunting and eleven flags that have for years waved welcome alike to delegations of visiting firemen and the witch with the loveliest legs in Wichita; a State House perfunctorily dressed up in like manner, with a reviewing stand of rotting, unpainted wood out front.

Six thousand miles of the world's two great oceans have been conquered by men in flight, two of whom are of Boston's own. Yet today, the day before their arrival, there is nothing; nothing to be seen as a sign of welcome beyond strings of police rope along the streets, signs reading "No Parking, Parade Coming," a smudge of bunting on City Hall, and a few private homes in the Back Bay dressed up.

WAKE UP, BOSTON. Wake up and show some enthusiasm.

ONE HURT WHEN AUTO CRASHES INTO TROLLEY

One man was injured and a score of passengers shaken up today when the automobile driven by August L. Rausch of Winthrop and an inbound Orient Heights trolley car collided in Day square, East Boston..

Trafafic was delayed about 30 minutes while the Elevated emergency crew removed the wrecked auto and placed the forward trucks of the car back on the rails.

According to the police, Rausch, who had been following the trolley car, attempted to pass and make a turn. His machine and the car crashed, the impact hurling the forward truck of the trolley car off the rails.

Several women passengers on the trolley became hysterical, but a rush for the doors was prevented by Conductor Henry Gerth and Motorman Philip H. Sheridan, both of East Boston.

Rausch was thrown through the door of his machine to the paving, receiving cuts and bruises.

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

GRANDMA, 23, APT TO LACK TITLE

New Bedford, July 21.—If you were an attractive married matron and somewhat unexpectedly annexed a grandmother who was some years younger than yourself, how would you address her?

This is one of the complications that have arisen out of the approaching marriage of James Dennison Butts, 69-year-old dominie, and Evelyn Frances Scott, 23-year-old nurse of Orleans.

After the marriage takes place tomorrow Mrs. Ethel Brown will find herself with a grandmother mother younger than herself.

Twelve-year-old Gladys Mae Brown, who will soon be the great-granddaughter of the 23-year-old nurse, was equally emphatic.

"I'll call her 'aunty'. I have one grandmother," the youngster declared.

A title for his prospective great-grandmother was of little concern to five-year-old Willie Brown. With the aid of a few ice cream cones he was finally persuaded to express an opinion.

"Will you call your new relative grandma?" the youngster was asked. "No, I won't," the lad emphatically responded. "I won't call her nuthin."

Little Cora Abiah Divall, just three, has settled the matter, already. The prospective grandmother is referred to under the rather inclusive title of "say."

With his toy rabbit is seen Prince Carol's oldest son whose mother, Mme. Zizi Lombrino, morganatic wife of former Crown Prince whom he married before he was wedded to Princess Helene, claims is real heir to throne. And with his royal grandmother, Queen Marie, is Prince Michael, son of Carol and Helene, now the baby King of Rumania, Michael I. He speaks three languages though only five years old.

JEALOUS, 'LOOT' HOME OF BUD'S FIANCEE

New York, July 21.—The New York Daily Mirror, in a copyrighted story from Grand Anse, Quebec, says that four jealous sisters of Bud Stillman's bride-to-be, Lena Wilson, have stripped the modest Wilson cottage of all its furnishings.

As a result, the marriage of the Cinderella of the North Woods and the heir to millions will take place July 26 in the Stillman Lodge.

And, in all probability, Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman will give the bride away to her son.

According to the Mirror story, the four sisters of Mrs. Bud Stillman-to-be, promised Mrs. Stillman they would have their home ready for the wedding. But, instead, it was revealed this week, the little north woods cottage is empty—with nothing but a wide open door and an old kitchen range. The four sisters are said to have gone to Montreal.

Jealousy of the little sister who has found love and millions is blamed for the action.

Dispatches from La Tuque, Quebec, near Grand Anse, stated that the entire countryside already is preparing to celebrate the wedding. The pomp and ostentation which usually attend a society wedding will be lacking, it is said, and in their place will be the festivities without which no French-Canadian wedding is a success.

NEW PARISH CREATED IN BELLINGHAM

Cardinal O'Connell announced that he had created a new parish in Bellingham, which is part of Franklin.

The Rev. Joseph D. Binette, now pastor of St. Zepherin's Church at Cochituate, has been made pastor of the new parish, which was formerly part of St. Mary's parish, of which the Rev. Edward Kenney is pastor.

To fill the vacancy at Cochituate caused by the transfer of Father Binette, the Rev. Eugene J. Vincent, assistant pastor at St. Louis French Church, Lowell, has been made pastor of St. Zepherin's parish.

He has never spoken nor been out of bed since birth.

ANTI-3D-TERM BILL WILL AID COOLIDGE—EDGE

By Associated Press.

Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey thinks that adoption by the Senate of an anti-third term resolution would be the surest way of bringing about the renomination and re-election of President Coolidge.

He expressed this view while in this city for a few hours today on his way to Maine for a vacation.

Senator Edge had been asked by newspapermen if he wished to comment on an interview published in New York and Boston papers today in which Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, Democrat, was quoted as expressing the opinion that the next Congress would adopt a resolution upholding the third term tradition.

"It is mighty considerate of Senator Walsh," Senator Edge remarked, "to warn the Republicans of defeat should President Coolidge for a second time be called to lead his party. No one in the Senate will question Senator Walsh's sincerity as a real dyed-in-the-wool uncompromising Democrat and one who has been most industrious in trying to create or discover issues upon which his party might ride to victory.

"His kind advice that President Coolidge should refuse renomination appeals to me as a clear indication that the Montana senator recognizes his strength.

"If the Senate should, as he infers, adopt a resolution opposing the President's renomination, it would be the most certain way to assure his selection."

ARREST TWO IN SEA SLAYING

New York, July 21 (A.P.)—A mysterious murder of a woman at sea today alone remained of the many strange tales that preceded the four-masted schooner Kingsway half way around the world.

The schooner was slowly making its way along the Jersey coast towards New York harbor today, while two members of its crew, taken off by an armed Federal boarding party, were being held in cells at New York police headquarters for questioning concerning the murder of the wife of one of them.

Other tales of an unfettered dangerous prisoner, mutiny and sudden deaths that followed in the wake of the ship in its course along the African gold coast and across the Atlantic fell before the scrutiny of United States district attorneys and coast guardsmen.

Assistant U. S. District Attorneys Genneth Simpson and George J. Mitzer, who boarded the ship off Barnegat Light, said they questioned the captain and members of the crew for more than an hour. They then took into custody Earl Battice, 24, a Porto Rican steward, and Carl Eadke, donkey engineer, of Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

Soldier Held in Girl Attack

Camp Devens, July 21—With nineteen-year-old Pearl Agurkis sufficiently recovered to permit her removal today to Lynn General Hospital, Private James Farnsworth of the United States army, formerly attached to Fort Andrews in Boston harbor, faces a court martial on her charge that he attacked and brutally beat her.

PASSENGERS ON FOG-TIED BOATS ALL NIGHT

were shed as relatives and passengers met at the gangplanks of the Bradford.

"Wouldn't have missed it for the world," somebody said. "You were more worried than we," was another.

But with Captain P Thatcher of the Bradford, now that it was all over, it was another story.

WORST FOG IN YEARS.

"The worst fog in my sixty years at sea," was the Bradford's skipper's comment. The captain also received the congratulations of the U. S. steamboat inspectors for not only refusing to bring his boat into the harbor under the conditions that prevailed, but for picking a berth to anchor out of the channel.

The Bradford was due early last evening, having left Boston for Provincetown in the morning at 10 o'clock. Off Allerton the fog was so thick that the boat was forced to anchor. The ship's orchestra jumped into action and played until 2 a. m.

As a result many of the 600 passengers danced as comfortably as though they were on a hotel ballroom floor. Hot coffee and food were served to all. Radio messages flashed from the Bradford to the shore, the ship waiving its fee in an effort to aid the passengers in communicating with relatives.

To those who did not get staterooms, blankets and other clothing was given. Among those on board were Manager Frederick Peabody and Mrs. Peabody, who assisted the ship's officers and crew in making everybody comfortable.

LITTLE GIRLS ABOARD.

Among others were about 300 members of the New England Order of Protection, and 24 little girls, who had been on a vacation in Provincetown, in charge of Stanton King of the Sailors' Haven in Charlestown.

One of them, Alice Emery, twelve years old, declared that she was not a bit frightened. Her father, James F. Emery of No. 1036 North Shore road, Revere, was at the dock to meet her, having sat up all night.

"We wouldn't have missed it for the world," was the verdict of the Misses Gertrude Carey and her sister Louise, Idele Gardner and Leila Tuxsbury, all of Marblehead. "We were danced off our feet," they declared.

Hours late were other craft that were either forced to anchor or barely crawl through the murky mist that made visibility impossible. At Highland Light, the Graves, Deer Island and other observation stations it was reported impossible to see anything, nor to get the names of shipping made helpless and blinded by the thick wall of fog. A heavy ground swell added to the discomfort and danger.

HOURS LATE

The Nantasket boats, which had suspended running during the night because of the fog, managed to get away two boats for the morning commuters, and these barely crawled through the line of tied-up shipping, making the trip hideous with their shrieking whistles and bells. Vessels of all kinds were tied up off Quarantine.

The fog was so thick that their identity could not be established. Among them were ocean freighters, colliers and other craft. Both the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn and the city of Boston ferries made slow work of crossing the harbor, but for the most part their passengers were only a few minutes late.

Off the Graves the Leviathan, due here yesterday for overhauling in the South Boston drydock, was still anchored and unable to move because of conditions. Unless she can reach port by 3 o'clock there will be another day's delay in docking her.

At least three vessels ran ashore on Cape Cod. One of these, an unidentified fisherman that had gone onto Nausett bar, had been refloated before the Coast Guard station crew at Nauset reached her side. The boat was apparently undamaged.

New York and Maine-bound passenger steamships are unable to leave port. Fall River line steamships also are tied up. A large coast guard plane is fog-bound at Plymouth.

So many craft are scattered about Boston Harbor, waiting for the fog to lift, that it has been impossible for coast guard ships to make their way out to go to the aid of the three stranded boats

The first report of a stranded ship came when the steam trawler Ruth Mildred, from Gloucester, in charge of Captain Daniels, struck off Wellfleet.

While coast guardsmen from Cahoun's Hollow were rushing to her aid, the three-masted schooner Orleans, in charge of Captain Bryant of Wellfleet, went aground about a thousand yards off the port side of the Ruth Mildred.

THIRD ARREST DUE TODAY IN MAIL PROBE

A new arrest was expected today in the drive by postal inspectors to stop alleged tampering by postoffice clerks with United States mail.

Inspectors, while trailing a third suspect, arrested Ralph W. Neal and David M. Tangney, both clerks at the South Postal station, on charges connected with the opening of a "decoy" letter purporting to have been written by former Senator William M. Butler to First Assistant Postmaster-General John H. Bartlett in Washington.

Neal, according to Chief Inspector Park D. Colvin, confessed to opening the decoy letter and also a letter written by Mr. Butler to General Bartlett last May.

Before Federal Commissioner Jenney, Neal entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $500 bail for a hearing. Tangney, arrested later, was not arraigned but was released until today

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Opera Intime at Stillington Hall, Gloucester, Proves Great Success

"OPERA INTIME" AT the North Shore is an enormous success! Society put the cachet of its high approval on the American Opera Company and applauded "Faust" to the echo. For the artists it was a decided personal triumph. For the opera, presented in English by American singers, the premiere at Stillington Hall, Leslie Buswell's Gloucester estate, there was warmest approval. Surely the "Opera Intime" may take an assured place in the artistic-social scheme as Boston society arranges it.

STILLINGTON LENDS ITSELF marvelously to opera of the intimate sort. Its hooded lights, its high raftered ceilings, its walls of rough hewn stone all created a scene which the stage with its singers completed. Then, too, Mr Buswell's newest addition — a cloistered approach—perfected the artistic illusion. Perfect, from every angle was this momentous occasion. Musically excellent, pictorially enchanting and socially extremely important. The handsome hall scarce would hold the many many people who sought entrance at its ancient beamed door.

SARAH R. ROBBINS

Her engagement to Minton Warren of Cambridge was announced today.

THE AUDIENCE WAS FASHionable and decidedly good to look upon. Smart matrons folded handsome wraps about themselves for their drive up through Ravenswood Park to Stillington's gates, rich wraps that covered gowns and jewels quite "grand operish." Mrs. Hinkley Welch, for one, was handsomely turned out. Her jewels were several ropes of pearls. Her gown was a filmy tissue banded in rhinestones, and her wrap scintillated the approved melange of metallic color. Mrs. Welch's son, Francis, and her daughter, were with her—Miss Barbara in crimson wrap and crimson frock, her dark hair caught with a jeweled pin, perhaps in anticipation of debutante days and ways, yet to come.

JUSTICE OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES and Mrs. Holmes were in the audience that applauded "Faust" to the very echo. M. Graeme Haughton lent the dignity of his presence to the occasion and had nothing but the warmest of approval for the opera. Mrs. Gardiner Martin Lane, and her talented daughter, Miss Katherine Lane, were at Stillington last evening. Mrs. Lane wore a white wrap over her lacy and sequined gown, and Miss Lane likewise chose the tintless color. Dr. Maynard Ladd had his younger daughter, Miss Vernon Ladd, with him. This pretty girl was in white.

Fashionable Audience Is Pleased With Perfect Details

MRS. RALPH BRADLEY GAVE a touch of the medieval to her costume, with a cape of ruby red velvet touched with gilt, worn over a simple red crepe frock. Mrs. Quincy Shaw, Jr., wore one of those exquisite China shawls that may have come from the Orient when swift clipper ships sailed the seven seas. It was designed in tiny gold beads and covered a simple white frock. Against Mrs. Evans Dick's gold frock gleamed several ropes of pearls, and her wrap was of velvet with the large shirred collar that frames the face so softly.

MRS. HAROLD JEFFERSON COOLIDGE brought the Danish Minister in her group and later Miss Emily Coolidge, in a gay gown of Chinese red and white fur wrap, joined the party. Mrs. Howland Twombley's wrap was one of those soft crepe shawls embroidered in every rainbow color. Mrs. Philip Wilson wore another beautiful example of embroidery on crepe, with deep swinging fringe.

THAT PICTURESQUE AND clever matron, Mrs. Hendricks Hallet Whitman, swung about her slender shoulders a shawl of crystal white crepe, deeply fringed. Her gown was of black lace and for ornamentation there were pearls, several strands about the throat. Mrs. Whitman's metier is playwriting, and it may be that something from her pen—a sparkling comedy, perhaps—may soon take the boards at Stillington.

MISS GRACE MONKS, ONE OF the dinner hostesses before the opera, was in a gown of smoke gray and wrap of emerald velvet. Mrs. Harris Livermore's jade earrings and her frock of jade exactly matched in tint. Mrs. Harry Pratt McKean's dark beauty was set off to great advantage by her scarlet and silver wrap. She brought Miss Jean Sears to the opera. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Goodrich and their son, John, were keenly interested in every note. Ardent supporters, they, of this new venture. Mrs. Goodrich was very handsome in her metal wrap and her gown of frothy silver lace.

A DISTINGUISHED FIGURE IN the audience was Mrs. Harriet Fearing. Another veteran opera goer and staunch supporter was George W. Brown, who brought a large family party in his train. The Rev. John McGraw Foster and Mrs. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Hall, Mrs. John Greenough and many others were dinner hostesses before the opera. And to wind up the evening (really it was morning) Mr. Buswell entertained the company at a buffet supper in his beautifully appointed home. The Hall occupies a wing of the structure, and so his guests had but to cross the terrace from the theatre to living room.

GENEVA WAITS BRITISH WORD

Geneva, July 21 (A.P.)—Members of the three naval conference delegations were waiting impatiently today for word from London which might give an inkling of the conversations expected to take place between W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the British admiralty, and Viscount Cecil when they meet Premier Baldwin and other members of the British Cabinet.

These two leading members of the British delegation left Geneva for London ostensibly to place before the Cabinet a report on the status of the naval limitation conference, and it is considered here that much depends on the instructions they bring back with them. It is not expected they will return to Geneva before Monday. During their absence, all but minor deliberations have been suspended.

While nothing definite is known as to when the conference, in session just a month, will complete its labors, one Japanese delegate believes that the delegates will be able to leave for home soon after the middle of August. The Japanese are hopeful that an agreement will be reached.

Autos Are Ordered to Pussyfoot to Save Old Houses

Deerfield, July 21 (A.P.).—The shaky condition of pre-Revolutionary houses in this town, of which there are a considerable number, is responsible for an order issued today by the Selectmen to the Chief of Police, calling for an absolute restriction to a speed of 15 miles an hour of motor vehicles passing through the town.

The jar occasioned by the passing of trucks and other heavy vehicles at high speed is said to be seriously threatening the existence of the old dwellings, some of which date back to Colonial days, and which constitute the town's greatest charm.

YD DUE IN HUB TOMORROW

After reveille and mess call today the 26th (YD) Division resumed its march from Camp Devens to Boston.

The 8,000 officers and men struck camp at Concord, where the night was spent.

In full equipment, the men of the division have withstood the march extremely well. Marching has not been forced, and there has been practically no sickness. The men have weathered the heat perfectly and proved to be in excellent physical condition.

Ten miles was covered in the march to Concord, where camp was pitched on slopes about the town where the historic early battle of the Revolution was started.

Some of the units were camped on the same slopes from which John Adams and John Hancock, fleeing, watched the British files enter the town that April day in 1775. The division reaches Waltham today, its tour of camp duty nearly ended.

FEAR DEATH IN SACCO PARADE BY RIOTING

Common on Sunday, July 31, was taken under consideration by the street commissioners for decision later.

DENOUNCE CROWLEY.

As Superintendent Crowley aired his views, asserting, in his opinion, the parade was planned chiefly for the purpose of collecting money, Miss Mary Donovan and Gardner Jackson of the Sacco-Banzetti defense committee, who led the fight for a permit, leaped to their feet and denounced him.

Raising his voice, he reasserted his views and talked them into silence.

"et me recall to your minds the 1917 parade of Socialists," said the superintendent. "There was plenty of trouble that day.

"They say about this proposed parade that there will be no trouble, but whenever there is a parade of this kind there is bound to be trouble, because there will be arguments which will lead to trouble. Ther is liable to be rioting, serious injury and death as a consequence.

OBJECTS TO PARADE.

"I object most strenuously to this parade on July 31 or any other day. The streets of Boston ought not to be given over to a thing of this kind. In my opinion the parade is merely for the purpose of collecting money."

Interrupting him, Miss Donovan and Jackson shouted: "There won't be any money collected."

"I didn't come here to argue," retorted Supt. Crowley. "That's my opinion and I'm entitled to it. I'm not going to argue, but I hold to my opinion. As superintendent of the police of the city of Boston, I enter the strongest possible objection to this parade."

There were several other clashes between Gardner Jackson and Major Charles F. Harding, one of the members of the board of street commissioners. Questions put to Jackson while he was speaking indicated the commissioners fear trouble if the permit was granted.

CALLS HUB INTOLERANT.

Jackson, complaining of the "intolerance" shown by Boston, which he said had changed "sadly" since the days of the Adamses, Emerson and Garrison, was interrupted by Harding who accused him of making misstatements. Jackson, replying, challenged him to disprove his charges. He promised there would be no trouble.

Miss Donovan explained the purpose of the parade was to give sympathizers a chance to show their feelings toward the condemned men. She said a meeting was planned to be held at the conclusion of the parade on the Common and that 3,000 persons were to take part.

A surprise speaker in favor of the parade was Rev. Wolcott Cutler of St. John's Episcopal Church, Charlestown, speaking "as a citizen." Michael Flaherty, a union painter of Warren avenue, and John S. Codman, who is connected with the Civil Liberties Union, were other speakers.

Due to drinking plenty of water, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti are reported to be holding up remarkably on the fifth day of their fast.

SACCO FRIEND ARRESTED IN GENEVA

Geneva, Switzerland, July 21 (A.P.)—Charged with pasting inflammatory posters on a city wall without legal authorization, a Communist was arrested here today as an outgrowth of a sympathetic movement for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti. The man was held in jail pending investigation.

An increasing number of protests against the executions is being received by the American Legation at Berne and the American consulate at Geneva and other points. The American consulate has requested protection for Hugh Gibson, head of the American delegation to the tripartite naval conference here, although Mr. Gibson has previously declined police escorts or protection.

A mass meeting in protest against the proposed execution of the two men in Massachusetts will be held here on July 31.

The posters which have appeared in Geneva declare it is not clemency for Sacco and Vanzetti that is wanted, but justice. The posters say Vanzetti was condemned because of his doctrine: "I want a roof for each family, bread for every mouth and education for each heart."

The conservative Journal de Geneve has printed a leading editorial, declaring everything indicates Sacco and Vanzetti were condemned, not because they were murderers, but because they were revolutionists.

Injured by Auto

Robert G. Hatfield, five, of No. 79 Harvey street, Cambridge, was badly injured in front of his home when he was knocked down by an automobile.

Arrest "Jayriders," Portsmouth Police Chief Orders

Portsmouth, R. I., July 21.—Any boy or girl in this district who asks motorists for a ride will be taken into court. Chief of Police Deegan, starting a campaign against the young "jayriders" in order to keep them from being hit by motor cars, says he will arrest them on sight.

FLEEING BOOTLEG HITS TREE AND IS KILLED

St. Albans, Vt., July 21 (A.P.)—Winston Titus, twenty-one years old, of North Troy, was instantly killed when his car plunged into a tree and turned over when he was trying to escape from two immigration patrolmen. His car, laden with ale, had been chased by the patrolmen for some miles.

When he crossed the line he was followed by Immigration Patrolman Foucher of Newport. One wheel was found more than 100 feet from where the accident occured.

for a long time, and were forced to sell or pawn practically all their possessions in order to eke out a meagre existence.

Yesterday the gloom of despair was shot through by a ray of hope when Walz managed to obtain work in a local shoe shop. The hope was short-lived, however, for he lost the job a short time after obtaining it. Ill-health, brought on largely by under-nourishment, was the cause.

The couple were stunned by the shock. Grief enveloped them as they realized their last hope was gone. Then came desperation. No one will ever know who suggested the suicide pact, but the plans were made and carried out jointly.

The one room and kitchenette were scrupulously cleaned. Every pot and pan was put in place and the furniture in order. The few personal belongings left from the many trips to the pawnbroker were collected and placed in a box and the farewell note was written.

RUTH, SCARED, BEGS JUDD TO SAVE HER

New York, July 21 (A.P.)—The New York Daily News says that Mrs. Ruth Snyder, frightened by her approaching electrocution, has appealed to her one-time suitor, Henry Judd Gray, to assume full responsibility for the murder of her husband.

"If you will take full responsibility for Albert's death, and exonerate me, I will, when set free, devote all my time and funds in saving you."

This, it is declared, is the message the former Queens Village housewife gave one of her keepers at Sing Sing Prison to deliver to the former corset salesman. Whether the message was delivered the keeper refused to say.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes said he knew nothing about the matter. Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray are occupants of the Sing Sing death house, but their executions are held up pending appeals.

PAN-AMERICANS CLASH ON CUBAN PRESIDENT

Washington, July 21 (A.P.)—Expressions of good will from President Machado of Cuba, precipitated a fight on the floor of the Pan-American labor congress today, when Ricardo A. Martinez of Venezuela moved that the telegram be stricken from the records, "in view of the oppression, murder and crimes made a part of Machado's administration."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who was presiding, ruled that the greetings would be included in the record. Martinez had said there were strong probabilities if the telegram were accepted that "President Machado would take advantage of it and pose as a protector of the working classes."

Matthew Woll, an American Federation of Labor delegate, said that the sending of the message, its reading and its inclusion in the record would in no way commit the congress to a defense of Machado.

"To the contrary," he told the delegates, "it commits the president of Cuba to recognition of the Pan-American Federation of Labor as the only legitimate labor movement in Latin America."

The congress expects to receive from its resolutions committee the draft of a proposal designed to set forth the organization's attitude regarding the recent clash in Nicaragua between American Marines and forces commanded by General Sandino.

GEN. O'RYAN'S DAUGHTER ELOPEMENT HONEYMOON

New York, July 21 (A.P.).—The New York Times says Miss Janet Jordan O'Ryan, daughter of Major-General and Mrs John F. O'Ryan, and Donald Bomann are honeymooning in the White Mountains following a surprise marriage on Monday.

No announcement of an engagement had been made by the family and General O'Ryan declined to discuss the marriage. Bomann is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Bomann of New York.

COURTNEY PUTS OFF HIS FLIGHT UNTIL SUNDAY

Dublin, Ireland, July 21 (A.P.).—Captain Frank T. Courtney, British aviator who is preparing for a transatlantic flight to New York, will not attempt the flight before Sunday, says a message received from him at the Baldonnel air station in County Dublin.

COURTNEY PUTS FLIGHT OFF FOR ANOTHER DAY

Southampton, England, July 21 (A.P.).—Friday evening or Saturday morning has now been set by Captain F. T. Courtney, the British aviator, for the start of his transatlantic flight to New York. Another test to which he put his flying boat, the Whale, last night demonstrated that further adjustments were necessary, and this fact, coupled with reports from the United States weather bureau of threatening weather over the Atlantic, prompted the decision of a further postponement. He had hoped to take off yesterday morning, but found the wireless apparatus was not working properly.

POLICE CHIEF RUNS BABY SHOW; MAKES AWARDS

Fitchburg, July 21—Still thrilled by their sharing in the mobbing of ticket takers and "crashing the gate" at the city's first baby show, Fitchburg mothers today asked Chief of Police Thomas Godley to use the $100 he took from the show receipts for purchasing the prizes which the promoters of the event are alleged to have failed to have in evidence at the show.

Angered by the charge of an admission fee when the show had been advertised as free, the mothers, babes in arms and children at their sides bore down upon the men at the gate. Storming the gate proved effective, and the mothers in large numbers entered without payment of money.

Chief Godley took charge of the show, handled the judging of the babies and when he learned there were no prizes on hand, took the $100 and locked it up for use to buy the awards if necessary.

MALDEN SNEAK THIEF GETS WATCH AND $600

Malden police are searching for a sneak thief who stole $600 and a gold watch from a fruit store at No. 348 Main street today. The money and watch were left in the rear of store by Mrs. Edward F. Coleman, wife of the proprietor, who had been called to the front to wait upon a customer. The woman had drawn the cash from a Lynn bank earlier in the day, intending to deposit it in a Malden bank.

Children told the police they saw a young man with his left hand bandaged, leaving the alley behind the store at the time the theft occurred.

CECIL ATTACKS NAVAL PARLEY ENEMIES

London, July 21 (I.N.S.).—The American position in Geneva is being misrepresented by propagandists who are striving to sabotage the tri-partite naval disarmament conference, Viscount Cecil charged today.

"Interested propagandists are once more at work to sabotage the conference by portraying the American government and its Geneva delegation as irreconcilably hostile to the Anglo-Japanese proposals," Viscount Cecil said, "while as a matter of fact the American government has still to deliberate thereon and the American delegation is consequently waiting for instructions from Washington before expressing any definite opinion on the subject."

Viscount Cecil and the Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, chief of the British delegation in Geneva, conferred today with members of the Imperial Defense Committee, explaining the agreement with the Japanese and compromises with the United States, asking for approval of the policy they have pursued.

The number of 8-inch gun cruisers which will be allowed Great Britain and the United States, is now the chief obstacle to the success of the conference, it is learned.

Bridgeman insists the number of these cruisers be limited strictly so that Great Britain can employ her cruiser tonnage for lighter cruisers to protect trade routes.

Viscount Cecil is reported to be less adamant than Bridgeman and is even prepared to urge concessions to the American demands before the cabinet.

The conference is marking time until the return of Bridgeman and Viscount Cecil.

Secret conferences between the Japanese and American delegates continue.

G. O. P. DIVIDED ON CONVENTION PLACE IN 1928

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.,
Editor of Universal Service.

Washington, July 21.—Upon the question of a convention city in 1928, the Republican national committee is divided between San Francisco and Kansas City.

Some supporters of Kansas City claim the favor of the Administration, but admit that at the moment San Francisco is preferred by a majority of the members of the committee. It is also very strongly preferred by a majority of the Washington correspondents, who remember the tremendous success with which San Francisco discharged the duties of host to the Democratic national convention of 1920.

Were California unanimous in her support of San Francisco, little doubt is felt here that the Republican national convention would go there next year.

SUPPORT KANSAS CITY.

Kansas City, however, is getting some support from a small group of California Republicans, who threaten to oppose the renomination of Senatir Hiram Johnson. They are afraid that the holding of the national convention of their party in Senator Johnson's home city might prove advantageous to his candidacy.

For that reason they would prefer, according to information reaching certain prominent members of the national committee, to see the national convention go to Kansas City or any other city outside of California.

Among the reasons advanced by Middle Western Republican leaders for preferring Kansas City to San Francisco, is the growing strength of Senator Reed of Missouri as a Democratic candidate for President. They are fearful that his nomination by the Democrats would mean not only the loss of Missouri, but also of a group of neighboring States that are normally Republican in a presidential year.

They are urging, therefore, the bringing of the Republican convention to Kansas City in an effort to check the swing to Reed which they admit exists in the Democratic Party.

ACTIVE CANVASS.

Although the choice of a convention city will not be made until next December, an active canvass is now in progress to line up all doubtful members of the Republican national committee in support of either San Francisco or Kansas City.

President Coolidge has not yet declared his preference, but the claims of the supporters of Kansas City that they have assurance of the administration's support may force the President to break his silence before very long.

Ohio Republicans are reported to be divided upon the question of a second choice. They have not abandoned hope of getting the convention to come again to Cleveland. With Cleveland eliminated it is believed that the Longworth wing of the party in that State inclines toward San Francisco as Ohio's second choice.

New England committeemen are similarly divided, but San Francisco is said to have the support of a majority. The vest pocket members of the committee from a number of Southern States will of course vote as Chairman Butler dictates. His orders await the pleasure of the President.

THREAT OF NEW ATTACK ON MARINES

Managua, Nicaragua, July 21 (A.P.).—General Sandino, notwithstanding the defeat which his band suffered at the hands of American marines and native constabulary at Ocotal, hopes to capture Tiscapa Fort, which controls the city of Managua, now occupied by marines.

An intercepted message addressed by Sandino to his wife reads: "Although they believe me weak, I shall soon occupy the Tiscapa fortress."

In contrast is a radio sent by Gen. Logan Leland, in command of marines, to his wife at Atlantic City, N. J., U. S. A., which said:

"Thank God for the power of aviation that saved our men."

Another message, signed by Sandino, says the "only one responsible for what has happened here (at Ocotal) is the President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, who has supported Adolfo Diaz."

DOGS TRAIL "GORILLA MAN" IN MAINE ATTACK

Limerick, Me., July 20 (A.P.).—Relying more on the instinct of dogs than the intelligence of man, the posse headed by Sheriff Roger L. Bragdon, today resumed its search in the 2,000-acre wooded swamp for the assailant of Mrs. Edith Smith, school teacher, who was attacked Tuesday while on her way in an automobile to attend a Summer school at Gorham.

Recent rains handicapped the dogs. Mrs. Smith has recovered sufficiently to give a description of her assailant. She said he resembled a gorilla, his chest being covered with thick hair.

SOLDIER LOSES FINGERS AT LINDY LANDING FIELD

Providence, July 21 (A.P.)—Edmond Tetreault of Central Falls, a national guardsman with Co. A. 118th Engineers, stationed at Quonset Point, blew off three fingers of his left hand today when he touched a match to a detonator cap to see what would happen.

Tetreault and the company of guardsmen are handling the crowds at the field where Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is to land this afternoon.

ANTI-SALOON OFFICIALS TAKE RAP AT WHEELER

OPINION ON NOMINATION OF 'AL' SMITH DISCLAIMED

the press upon his statement." Wheeler is now in Michigan.

Despite the fact that it eulogized his services for the "Dry" cause, the statement was interpreted here as a "public spanking" for Wheeler from the League, the first that he has received during the many years of his leadership.

Coming on the expose of Wheeler's methods by the Hearst papers, it was taken as an indication of growing resentment on the part of clergymen throughout the country against his political activities.

Bishop Cannon is chairman of the legislative committee of the Anti-Saloon League and chairman of the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Dr Barton is chairman of the executive committee of the League and chairman of the committee on temperance of the Southern Baptist Convention.

NOT LEAGUE STATEMENT.

After quoting Wheeler as saying that the nomination of Smith would give "Dry" Democrats an opportunity to vote an "independent" ticket the statement said:

"From the wording of this statement, the secular press generally, certainly in the South has very naturally considered this to be an authoritative declaration of the Anti-Saloon League of America. But this is not to be an authoritative declaration of the Anti-Saloon League of America. It is simply the expression of the opinion of Dr. Wheeler, one official of the league.

"Therefore, as 'Dry' Southern Democrats, officials of the league for very many years, we have decided that it is right and necessary in order that there may be no misunderstanding, that the Southern press and people, at least, shall know that we do not join in this statement by Dr. Wheeler as to certain political contingencies, which statement we would emphasize is not an official declaration of the Anti-Saloon League of America."

CHARGE G. O. P. BIAS.

Practically charging Wheeler with political "bias" in favor of the Republican party, the statement went on to say:

"We do not think it accurate, appropriate or helpful for any League official to declare that one party (in this case the Republican party, as the context implies) will nominate a candidate satisfactory to the Anti-Saloon League of America, while the Democrats may nominate a wet candidate, and furthermore to imply that many 'Dry' southern Democrats would be too narrow to vote for the satisfactory 'Dry' Republican, but would demand the nomination of an independent 'Dry' Democrat, even though there would be absolutely no possibility of his election."

In concluding, Bishop Cannon and Dr. Barton expressed it as their personal belief that "Dry" southern Democrats will never agree to the nomination of Smith, Reed, Ritchie or any other "Wet" Democrat.

"If the Democratic convention does not respect these convictions and should nominate a 'Wet' Democrat, then 'Dry' Democrats, North as well as South, will doubtless determine what course they will follow," the statement said.

BARN FIRE THREATENS SECTION OF REVERE

Fire practically destroyed a two story barn on Winthrop avenue, near Harris street, Revere, in the heart of a thickly settled section today. The flames spread rapidly and when the first of the local firefighting apparatus arrived had enveloped the building. Owing to the location, part of the Chelsea apparatus responded. Chief Thomas McCarrick of the Revere fire department is conducting an investigation.

STRANDED DUKE WORKS AS EXTRA IN MOVIES

Archduke Leopold of Austria, who spent all his money shortly after his arrival in this country for a tour, now is a full-fledged motion picture extra.

The Austrian nobleman went to work before a camera here to earn enough to return to Europe where he hopes to avenge the "insult" which he insists Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Austrian minister to the United States, flung at him recently when his royal highness asked the envoy to handle a loan for him. Count Szechenyi now is in Europe.

The Archduke wants to follow him to fight the duel. But it is a case, according to his secretary, Alfred Neuhardt, of the spirit being willing, even eager, but the pocketbook woefully weak.

Since the bit played by the Archduke, that of a German army captain, called for a crop of hair, and the Archduke, although young, is approaching baldness, a toupee was pasted on his head.

RASH BROKE OUT ON LIMBS

Skin Was Sore And Red. Cuticura Healed.

"A rash broke out on my limbs. The skin was sore and red, and the affected parts were swollen. The breaking out itched mostly all the time, and certainly caused me to scratch. On account of the irritation I spent many sleepless nights, and my clothing aggravated it.

"Other remedies were used without avail. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using it there was an improvement so I purchased more, which completely healed me in one month." (Signed) Miss Evelyn Ferreira, 19 Cornell St., Arlington, Mass., April 5, 1927.

KIRSTEIN URGES CITIZENS TO WORK FOR AIRPORT

"All good citizens should join hands to make Boston the first airport of the country," writes Louis E. Kirstein, vice president of William Filene's Sons Company, in an article supporting the drive for a bigger and better equipped Boston airport. He adds:

"We have the money and facilities to have the finest airports and the best developed commercial aviation in the world."

By LOUIS E. KIRSTEIN

Vice President William Filene Sons Company, who will preside at City of Boston's Welcome to Colonel Lindbergh on Boston Common.

L. E. Kirstein

I have noticed with interest the articles appearing in the Boston Evening American in favor of enlarging Boston's airport. It is difficult to realize why the United States, which was the pioneer in the invention of airplanes and which holds almost every record of accomplishment in the development of flying, should be so backward in developing the commercial side and in the development of suitable landing fields.

On my recent European trip while I was in Berlin I was invited to lunch at Tempelhofer Field, which was dedicated only a month before. This is the field where Chamberlin and Levine landed when they arrived in Berlin.

It is probably the best developed commercial airport in the world up to date and one visit there not only goes far to remove any fears one may have had about traveling by air, but it also shows the tremendous strides the Germans are making in developing aviation.

ONLY A HALF HOUR.

Tempelhofer Field is less than a half hour from the business section of Berlin by motor car. It is modern and up to date in every particular. It has a beautiful station in modern style, which looks like our large railway terminals and serves most of the same function.

In it is a section for customs and passport inspectors, a waiting room and a large dining room, which is conducted by the same people who run the dining cars on the central European trains.

The most interesting part, of course, of a visit to Tempelhofer Field is the planes. They are constantly coming and going, landing passengers, getting ready for a flight. While we were having luncheon, seven airplanes left and arrived, and they arrived and departed on the dot of the scheduled time.

ANNOUNCERS EVEN.

The arrival and departure of planes was announced in the dining room by a uniformed announcer exactly as trains are announced in our railroad stations. Printed timetables gave the schedules to all parts of Europe. These planes had regularly scheduled arrivals and departures for such near and distant points as Stockholm, Warsaw, Moscow, Vienna, Paris, Brussels, London, Dresden, etc.

The whole thing was so beautifully organized that it made flying look easy and we were intensely interested to know that the boys who gave the airplane the shove which starts it off, had become so accustomed to it that they did not even look to see if the airplane had gotten safely off. I think this thing more than anything else made us realize how accustomed Europe has become to commercial aviation.

In America we have led the world in flying exploits, and the recent marvelous achievements of Colonel Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Levine, Commander Byrd and his associates, have again made the whole world take off their hats to our aviators.

But, I think we should not be content with leading in this phase of aviation, for we certainly have the money and facilities to have the finest airports and the best developed commercial aviation in the world as well.

Every loyal American wants this to be accomplished, and every loyal Bostonian would like to see Boston lead. If we are to be leaders, now is the time to do so, and all good citizens should join hands to make Boston the first airport of the country—just as its clipper ships made it in the early days of American history the leading waterport.

probably killed more that ran into woods wounded and died.

Sandino, abandoned by his army, hiding in some wild part of Nicaragua, is a much surprised "wild beast of the mountains."

There would be some surprised statesmen in Washington, if we had war in this country, with foreign airplanes treating our cities as Uncle Sam treated Sandino's followers.

In Alabama seven men are indicted for flogging a young farmer boy, Jeff Calloway, because he went to church drunk.

Calloway was taken from a little church by a band of masked men, bound to a tree and lashed into unconsciousness.

You have there an interesting picture of United States civilization in 1927 and a particularly interesting picture of "nation-wide prohibition" in action.

Story of Love and Intrigue; A Girl Who Kept Her Head and a Tiger Woman

Jill goes alone to Odette's dressing-room; finds her middle-aged and faded; learns that Meldreth has been her benefactor, but never her sweetheart. She is cheered by this knowledge. Lady Meldreth appears in the theatre with Barinski; they are discovered by Lord Meldreth, who pours out to Jill the bitterness in his heart against his wife. Meldreth consults his wife in regard to a divorce, explaining that he has met someone whom he wants to marry. Lady Meldreth declines to accede to His Lordship's wishes. Meldreth takes Jill to luncheon to tell her of his wife's attitude and there discovers Parton, his dismissed servant, waiting on table.

Meldreth and Jill confess their mutual love, but she refuses to go away with him, unmarried.

The Count of Monte Cristo ~ By Alexandre Dumas

Villefort acted as judge in the trial of Cavalcanti for murder. The young man admitted the crime, but would give no name. Finally he declared that he was an illegitimate child and his father was Villefort! The judge stared at him closely, admitted everything, and staggered from the room.

Cavalcanti had been the baby found at Villefort's home years before. Villefort hurried home, hoping to reach his wife before she committed suicide. But she had killed her own son, whom she was unwilling to leave behind, and was dying herself. Villefort ran to find a priest and met the Abbe Busoni.

The Abbe revealed himself as Monte Cristo—and then as Edmond Dantes, the man Villefort had once wronged. He was willing to pray God to forgive his enemy, but the long succession of griefs and horrors had broken Villefort. He went mad. Monte Cristo had at last avenged himself on all his enemies.

His terrible mission was fulfilled, but he was sad as he thought of the harm he had brought to innocent persons while pursuing his quest for revenge. He went to Mercedes, and, as he bade her good-bye, he promised to watch over her son, Albert. Then he left France.

In Maine, good health is carefully safeguarded. Maine milk is pure and safe because Maine cattle are exceptionally healthy, and milk is under the rigid supervision of health authorities.

Public water supplies, including those for boys' and girls' camps and all recreational camps, are regularly inspected and tested by the State Health Department.

Maine air is invigorating. It is purified by the ozone of pine and balsam which helps to keep Maine people healthy.

In the mountains of Maine and at certain seacoast resorts there is no hay fever.

FINAL ODDS ARE 2-1 ON SHARKEY TO WIN

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

Dempsey Expects to Win By Early Knockout

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1927

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

FLATLEY IS STRONG FOR SHARKEY

Barring Lucky Punch Hub Heavy Should Win From Dempsey

By NICK FLATLEY.

New York, July 21.—The gladiators are ready. Regular "Tex Rickard weather" was [illegible] as the sun shone brightly at 8 o'clock.

Jack Sharkey, aged 26, is as fit as human care and preparation can make him for his effort to keep scaling the fistic heights tonight at the Yankee Stadium.

Jack Dempsey, aged 32, is as perfectly [illegible] for his attempted comeback as any mortal could be [illegible] years of comparative physical idleness.

[illegible] Sharkey, who will [illegible] at least $[illegible] for himself tonight, [illegible] will go more than $[illegible] and the vote on Dempsey [illegible] throwing everything [illegible] for the big shot and the [illegible] that will fall to the victor's [illegible]

This ring war has stirred up more [illegible] than any battle in history that did not have a title involved, [illegible] it is hard to recall any [illegible] that created [illegible] and aroused so many conflicting opinions and emotions.

It will probably be one whale of a collision—while it lasts.

It will probably end in a knockout

The deadly left hand of Dempsey, even of a slowed up Dempsey, can stop Sharkey if it lands early and often enough

The [illegible] skill and punishing power of the [illegible] Sharkey can cut down even such a splendid man machine as the [illegible]hearted Dempsey if the fight goes along, and the years begin to take the snap out of the Tiger's muscles.

REAL FIGHT EXPECTED.

It is our belief that the crowd will be [illegible] out of the Yankee Stadium [illegible] rounds have gone into history. It is also our belief that the history. It is also our belief that the bull like and lightning fast youngster Sharkey will keep away from the wicked thrusts of the aging champion, and will administer such punishment doing it that old Jack will go down before the assault.

Nick Flatley

It would seem to be a mortal cinch that this fight will be one of those real, wild-eyed wars that provide the thrill that can draw millions out of American pocketbooks.

Dempsey, believing firmly in his star, will wade in to commit his ring murder as quickly as he did at Toledo.

Sharkey, confident that nobody can [illegible] him, sure that he cannot be hurt, will carry his own fight as far as he knows how. He will want to show 80,000 fans that a new and real champion is flaming across the pugilistic sky.

DEMPSEY STILL IDOL.

Dempsey, heavier than the bunch of springs, fire and muscle that annihilated Jess Willard, will weigh pretty close to 2[illegible] when he steps into the ring. Sharkey, robbed of every ounce of superfluous fat, will be 1[illegible] pounds, just what he aimed at.

Sharkey this morning is the favorite in the betting at odds of 9 and 8 to 5.

But the fight crowds pouring in from all corners of the country are bringing plenty of sentiment along. The old champion, the mauler who broke them to pieces and knocked them dead with a few punches, is still the great idol, the biggest drawing card sport has known.

The bets being made as results of arguments and you can hear them on every corner, and in every spot where ginger ale and other things are dispensed, are generally at 6 to 5, and sometimes at even money. Sentiment knows no prices.

The real gamblers, though, the boys who make a profession of it, are playing Sharkey off the boards, and they will put up no Dempsey money until they can get 2 to 1. That, it seems as the big moment approaches, will be the official price at bell time.

Both Dempsey and Sharkey are

YOUTH, with all its fire, and strength and courage is exemplified by Jack Sharkey, Hub heavyweight, who has only to remove Dempsey from his path in order to attain his life's ambition—a chance to knock the heavyweight crown from the classic brow of Gene Tunney. Not since the days of the immortal John L. Sullivan has the Hub been the home of a heavyweight king. Sharkey is confident he can win, and will stake all he has in his bout with Dempsey. His only danger is overconfidence. He ought to win, and all Boston is rooting hard for the fighting sailor man.

AGE will be in Dempsey's corner, but not an ally, when he meets Jack Sharkey. Time is the only champion that can always come back, and Time will tighten its clutch on Dempsey as the fight moves along. The Manassa Mauler will have to start at a furious pace if he expects to win at all. Each minute will find the former champ getting weaker. No champion in the heavyweight division has ever made a successful comeback. If Dempsey does, he will make history. But Time is against the Tiger, while Youth will lend Sharkey strength. It will be a great fight, one that ought to provide thrills by the fistful.

JACK SHARKEY JACK DEMPSEY

A PAIR OF JACKS WILL BATTLE FOR ONE OF THE BIGGEST FIGHT POTS THAT HAS EVER BEEN DEALT IN THE BOXING GAME.

Tonight in the Yankee Stadium, New York, when Jack Sharkey of this city, full of youth, ambition, confidence and the spark that makes champions, meets Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler, former champion, who still retains his ambition and punch, but whose ageing frame is not likely to survive the devastating assault the Boston youth is expected to administer to him. The ever alert, bobbing and weaving Sharkey, a difficult target, is bound to cause Dempsey considerable trouble locating him, especially since reports from the Saratoga training camp indicated that his timing was very poor. Dempsey expects to win by a clean knockout. Sharkey expects to make an early clean-up. It's the real Battle of the Century. May the best man win.

Boston American Experts Pick Sharkey

Nick Flatley, sports editor of the Boston Evening American who has visited both training camps, favors Jack Sharkey to win tonight's fight. Nick stresses Sharkey's youth, speed, punch, endurance and intelligence.

Jack Conway, boxing editor of the Boston Evening American, who has followed Sharkey so closely during his training season, is firm in the belief that the Boston boy will defeat Dempsey.

Both Flatley and Conway are regarded as the shrewdest sport observers in the country and their host of followers will string along on Jack Sharkey to beat Jack Dempsey tonight.

FIGHTERS ON EDGE FOR MILL

Sharkey and Dempsey Very Confident as Fight Time Nears

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, July 21.—Eighty two thousand wildly cheering fight fans will jam the Yankee Stadium tonight to see Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey settle the question of supremacy in a 15-round bout.

It will be the greatest turnout for a non-championship bout in the history of the ring. This mighty gathering will pay $1,500,000 for the privilege of seeing tests of iron decide Gene Tunney's opponent for the championship quarrel in September.

[illegible] to 1 post time.

Sentiment is with Dempsey [illegible] champion.

Jack Conway

There were wild rumors along Broadway today that the bout was in the well known satchel for Dempsey to win. I know these reports are absolutely without foundation. If Dempsey wins tonight, it will be because he is a better fighter than Sharkey. The latter would cut off his right arm before he would toss this battle to the Manassa Mauler.

There was a [illegible] for seats today. All of the good pasteboards are gone. There were a few of the [illegible] seats left this morning and these being snatched up like hotcakes.

The speculators, as usual, have got hold of a supply of the best tickets. Pairs of ringside seats within the first 15 rows were bringing as high as $400. The original cost was $[illegible].

BOSTON BEHIND SHARKEY.

Thousands of Boston and New England fans are here for the Battle of Boston's contenders. Most of them are giving Sharkey to win. They believe that the Yet [illegible] off Wills, Heeney, Renault, McTigue and Maloney should also be able to batter his way to a win over Dempsey.

Dempsey is in as good condition as it is possible for a boxer 32 years of age to get into. It is a question though whether this will be sufficient fitness to stop a youngster like Sharkey. The latter is 24 years of age and is going up as a boxer while Dempsey is on the toboggan.

I understand that Dempsey will make his big effort for victory in the early rounds. He will probably come out of his corner fighting and try to batter Sharkey down as he did Willard, Carpentier and Firpo.

This is the only kind of a battle which Dempsey can hope to win.

Sharkey won't stand up and swap punches with Dempsey in the early rounds. He will resort to a fiery left hand attack as he did in his recent tussle with Maloney. He will attempt to riddle the former champion with left jabs and hooks and when he begins to tire knock him out with right hand punches.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, believes that even if his protege fails to put across a kayo that the former champion will be so battered up after eight or ten rounds that the referee will have to go to his rescue.

Dempsey and Sharkey are supremely confident of victory with the hour of battle only a short time away.

The former champion came here from Saratoga early last night and hid himself away at Leo Flynn's apartment.

Sharkey spent the night at the uptown hotel where he has been living since he came to New York to train.

The Boston contender showed his confidence when he dropped around at Rickard's office today.

"I'll be around early tomorrow night to collect my check," laughed Sharkey. "Then I'll drive back to Boston. I'll see you again in September, when I collect my check for the Tunney match."

Sharkey is in better physical condition for tonight's battle than for any contest in his career. He will not carry even a bruise when he enters the ring tonight. It is also reported that Dempsey is also in the best of shape.

Amsterdam, N. Y., July 21 (A.P.)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, left here on the 11:12 o'clock train this morning for New York to see the Dempsey-Sharkey battle at the Yankee Stadium. He came to this city from his training quarters at Speculator and said he would return immediately after the bout.

Tunney would venture no opinion as to the winner of the bout.

JACK SHARKEY IS FLATLEY'S CHOICE

resting up today. Boston [illegible] around the [illegible] morning while Dempsey [illegible] in seclusion in his [illegible] late.

The Tiger is a changed man—pleasant and affable to all appearances, where he used to be grouchy and restless with a real fight coming off.

"I will punch this Sharkey out of the way," he grins, and believes it.

Sharkey is irritable and fidgety, as he gets when he has reached the peak of condition. He finds fault with everything on the day of his fight. He grows vicious as ring time approaches, and usually has himself boiled up to the proper pitch when he needs to be that way.

He was kicking about the weather and breakfast and [illegible] and everything this A. M. [illegible] delegated his manager, Johnny Buckley, and made Mrs. Sharkey supremely confident and happy.

"If he wasn't that way with a fight coming," she told us, "I would be afraid he was going to be beaten."

He gets that way for just one day. He's wonderfully happy while he's training and he's a big laughing kid as soon as a fight is over, but he has to get fretful when he's perfectly trained and anxious to have it over with.

SHARKEY CONFIDENT.

Mister Sharkey admits that he's going to win.

"I never was in better condition," he said this morning. "My training for this fight was the best I ever had. I wasn't hurt once, and never felt weak.

"I know Dempsey can hit, and all this talk about his being [illegible] isn't going to fool me a bit. I'll be fighting him just as if he was the champion [illegible] as well as the best [illegible] he ever knew.

"Dempsey can sock and if he hits me he'll hurt. But I can hit him too, and getting whacked is part of the game. It's a [illegible] but I'm not going to be standing [illegible] smack me without [illegible] a few back.

"I know this is the big spot of my career and I'll take no chances. But I'll make it a fight. That's my business. I can't tell till we get in the ring just how I'll go about it. But I will be ready for anything Dempsey may spring."

Sharkey, as you know, believes [illegible] and his confidence alone [illegible] tossed out.

In two years Sharkey has developed into a very giant of a man. His shoulders have broadened, his frame has been trained down as with the sculptor's chisel. He's a picture in his ring togs, just as physically beautiful and powerful looking as his rival Hercules, Jack Dempsey.

Two grander looking specimens of humanity have never met in any ring before. Dempsey is burned berry brown from his outdoor training. Sharkey's body is paler but flushed with the hue of perfect health.

Looking at either one would be convinced that nothing could hurt or stand up before him. But in this fight one or the other must go down. The millions and the glory that rest ahead will make avenging destroying demons of these two wonderful muscular machines.

This may and probably will be a scrap that will end quickly with a knockout. But it may go on to resolve itself into a grim test of endurance and the ability to take punishment.

Dempsey is as game as any man could be. He has been hammered and smashed, but never has been knocked out since he rose to the crest. He has been nailed with blows that would have crushed ordinary fighters, and they simply seemed to urge him on.

One is fired by the urge to get back on the throne; the other is rushing along with the bright ambition of youth, that knows no obstacles.

Both are real fighters. Their records have been discussed sufficiently. It will simply resolve into a test of brilliant experience against brilliant youth. Barring a lucky punch, youth should have the call.

"I'll Stop Dempsey," Says Jack Sharkey

New York, July 21 (I.N.S.).—Both Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, who meet in a 15-round bout in Yankee Stadium here tonight with a crack at Gene Tunney's title as the prize, were confident of victory today. Sharkey declared in no uncertain manner that he would win by a knockout. Dempsey said he hoped to drop the Boston man in the early rounds, but asserted he would outpoint Sharkey even if he failed to put him to sleep.

"Listen," said Jack Sharkey in his forthright manner, "you fellows have me all wrong. You ask me for the truth. I try to give it to you and then you make me out a blowhard. But I'll try to give you the truth again as I see it.

"I've always looked up to Dempsey, admired him as a fighter and as a man. I think he has been great as both, but the time has come when our paths cross. He is in my way to the thing I want most, the heavyweight title. All right, I will have to clear him out of the way.

"This simply is a business proposition with me. When a captain of finance finds a competitor challenging his right to the place he occupies he naturally goes in there to kill off that challenge. Dempsey is in my way. I have my heart set on the title. There is no sympathy in my makeup in a case like that. I'm for myself. Dempsey must go; I'll knock him out."

Never in my life have I looked forward with more [illegible] and confidence to a battle than I am looking forward to that one with Jack Sharkey tonight and never have I felt in better condition [illegible] than I am now," Dempsey said.

"I mean that in all honesty and [illegible] for a battle tonight than I did on the day I fought and [illegible] Willard.

"Today I'm right. I'm not like I was in 1919, not like I was for Tunney. I'm trained to travel fast and far and I promise those who are my friends that if I can't drop Sharkey in the early rounds I'll outstep him and force the fighting and beat him as we go along.

Thousands Battle for Fight Tickets

Weaving their way through the impatient crowd, speculators openly offered for sale at fabulous premiums tickets that could not be obtained at the box office.

Sure-thing gamblers hung around hotel lobbies like hawks, eager to snatch up bets, while the "come on" men loudly shouted Dempsey as a favorite in order to prepare the unwary for a "sucker" bet.

All New York is fight mad. The day is warm and fair, with every prospect of a perfect evening for the greatest heavyweight battle in years.

Rumors of all kinds fill the metropolis. [illegible] left arm is no good. [illegible]

GUARD OFFICIALS

A rumor [illegible] sixteen judges [illegible] to select [illegible]

To guard against any possible [illegible] the officials for this big go it will not be made known until the contenders are ready to step into the ring.

More than a million dollars has been bet on the fight. [illegible] A flock of Dempsey [illegible] with money to [illegible] down the odds to 7 [illegible] Sharkey the favorite. [illegible] small bettors. Among the professional gamblers the betting was 10 to 1 or 9 to 5 on Sharkey.

TUNNEY ON HAND

A special detail of [illegible] to dislodge more than [illegible] who took up their stand [illegible] Madison Square Garden [illegible] offered choice seats [illegible] that only bootleggers [illegible]

Among the [illegible] arrived here was Gene Tunney. He refused to make any comment on the outcome of the fight and will turn to Speculator as soon as the fight is over.

"The former champion hasn't a Chinaman's chance. I'll take Dempsey over the hurdles [illegible]," declared Jack Sharkey when asked concerning the bout.

"If Sharkey is on his feet at the end of the fifth round I'll be disappointed," was Dempsey's comment.

"N. E. CHAMP" THERE

Several of the fans seeking bleacher seats spent the night outside the stadium. One of the first to arrive was Ixibel Jones of the Times Square Hotel who brought a camp stool and a suitcase containing several meals.

Another was "Kid" Lewis of Hartford, Ct., who said he was bantamweight champion of New England. He believed in saving his pennies, he said, and is content with a bleacher seat.

Who Were the First Inhabitants of This Earth?

By Garrett P. Serviss
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

PROFESSOR OSBORN affirms that man is not descended from the apes. Professor Gregory [illegible] with Professor Osborn [illegible] seeming [illegible] paleontology [illegible] may be concerned, as [illegible] of [illegible].

But this is by no means such a [illegible] real collision [illegible] of the two professors are compared [illegible] not re[illegible] voluntary [illegible].

[illegible] man from the line of the Primates, who have been described as having originated [illegible] insectivorous mammals more or less closely [illegible] the modern tree shrews of Africa."

As to the relationship between [illegible] a question of now and when [illegible] branches separated from the parent branch of the Primates [illegible] only one of [illegible] of the tree of [illegible] hand Professor Osborn [illegible] Professor Osborn [illegible] millions of years before the separation of the ape line. So, although a remote blood connection cannot be denied, yet that connection, according to the Osborn view, does not involve "descendance" of man from ape. The first [illegible] cannot be descended from the later formed.

On the other hand, Professor Gregory thinks that the apes were the first to branch off from the line of common origin, and that would imply the probability of some mixture of [illegible] exist is a matter [illegible]. If both the ape and man [illegible] these common [illegible] from the same source [illegible]. It is a mere quarrel about precedence.

The Osborn view may smooth the ruffled feelings of those who feel humiliated by the thought of 'family connection' with apes and monkeys, but it does not alter the fact that the human family had a very humble origin, an origin on the same level as that of the ape, since it started from the stem of the Primates.

Outside the circles of the scientists who are not troubled by such considerations the whole difficulty over the question of man's origin arises from the assumption that we know of certain scriptures and traditions just how man was created. The evidence that the origin of man goes back hundreds of thousands or even millions of years, beyond the six thousand years of these traditions, is simply overwhelming.

One must shut his eyes to common sense, reason, and logic in order to reject this evidence.

And how totally unnecessary appears this imperilling of the cause of genuine religion by staking it on disproved and discredited grounds, which should have been abandoned long ago. Why belittle the idea of God by refusing to see that He, the lawmaker of the universe, has developed the universe through the operation of his self-made laws? It was thus that the bigoted opponents of Galileo, imagining that they were serving God, refused even to look at Galileo's proofs of the operation of laws that were of God's own making, as the progress of knowledge has since demonstrated to the whole world.

Now I can do the biggest Summer wash
—in half the time!

OF course the wash is heavier during the warm months, and things get so much dirtier. But that doesn't bother me one bit now.

I have found a way to get the biggest summer wash out of the way in no time, without the least bit of hard rubbing. I just soak everything in thick, creamy Rinso suds—and dirt and stains float off by themselves!

Clothes come out of a Rinso soaking much brighter and whiter than I could rub them. I don't even need to boil, because Rinso sterilizes, too! So now my kitchen is cool on washdays.

Rinso makes our water wonderfully soft and sudsy. It's all I need on washday. Just ask your grocer for

DAILY SHORT STORY

SECOND BEST

By Louise Peple Armstrong

CORILLA SAUNDERSON, noted novelist and brilliant lecturer who for [illegible] had [illegible] herself [illegible] In the [illegible] movement [illegible] of [illegible] of her two [illegible] sons. They had both chosen the same profession [illegible] [illegible] Harold, [illegible] was [illegible] to the [illegible] of [illegible] Andrew [illegible] was a [illegible] to [illegible]

And [illegible] Corilla's [illegible] son [illegible] and a [illegible] days [illegible] position in the [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] even to [illegible] and [illegible] but [illegible] Andrew [illegible] his [illegible] from [illegible] a huge [illegible] with an expression of a [illegible] disgusted young [illegible] she gave up in despair and left him to his test tubes [illegible] and germs much to the young man's relief.

"Honor, glory, success and wealth." Andrew had repeated his mother's words in a whimsical tone as she left the room. He lit the little alcohol lamp on the experiment table, pulled on a pair of rubber gloves, and grinned stoically as he examined through the microscope a [illegible] of [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] and found [illegible]

[illegible] herself about her younger son, and turned her attention to Harold's [illegible] She asked [illegible] half a dozen [illegible] And [illegible] Iris McMaster [illegible] been chosen [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] the picture of exquisite daintiness.

She [illegible] within the next few weeks that [illegible] Iris McMasters [illegible] [illegible] at the [illegible] name.

"She's a charming [illegible] mother," he said [illegible] "that exemplifies my ideal of [illegible] womanhood."

"She's a dear child," agreed Corilla [illegible] "[illegible] have not [illegible] [illegible] Next week [illegible] Harold, you'll be 35 [illegible] I'd really hoped by this time you would have found some nice young thing to marry."

Harold laughed, and leaned over affectionately to pat her cheek. "I'm hard to please, after being so fortunate as to have Corilla Saunderson for a mother."

It was exactly the sort of thing Harold would say, and it pleased his mother mightily. Her beautiful eyes glowed with pride in him and she kissed him fondly. Later, alone in her boudoir she remembered [illegible] rather stiff smile. Harold had always been unresponsive. And she wondered if she really should be so touched by his pretty compliments. Andrew [illegible] awkward [illegible], would have [illegible] like a young bear and he would have said something like: "I'm waiting to find a girl like you, old [illegible]" But real love would shine from Andrew's gray eyes. Corilla sighed. Poor deluded Andrew. He tugged at her heartstrings, but Harold so fully satisfied the demands of her maternal pride.

Harold very soon began to pay open court to Iris McMasters. They were often seen driving together in his handsome coupe which was always kept spotless and immaculate because Harold seldom had to leave [illegible] A [illegible] was in town all his patients lived there, in palatial houses on the very best avenues or else in some carefully chosen suburb of the city. Iris drove about the parks with him, in and out of their winding, shady ways and for a time seemed very content and happy.

"Let's go out into the real country," she surprised him by saying one day. "I like to smell things growing—and somehow the sky looks different there."

He, of course, complied with her request, but as they struck the dusty highways and the car chugged [illegible] over [illegible] and [illegible] stones the dust choked him, and he wondered with irritation why Iris [illegible] want to be driving [illegible] it. Another whim—well, women must be humored at times!

"[illegible] look at [illegible] funny [illegible]" exclaimed Iris suddenly [illegible] in a [illegible] way. "And [illegible] isn't [illegible] your brother Andrew? Stop, and [illegible] I believe he's had [illegible]"

He was [illegible] and surprised when [illegible] his younger brother. Andrew lifted a smudgy face [illegible] and [illegible] He was standing in the [illegible] examining a [illegible] Had rotten luck," [illegible] [illegible] to see [illegible] [illegible] how about a lift into town?

[illegible] Harold uttered a [illegible] of disgust and [illegible] I'll send a mechanic [illegible] all right [illegible] fixed in no time." He [illegible] to [illegible]

"All right," replied Andrew with a crooked smile, a mocking light in his gray eyes. "I certainly wouldn't want to mess up Miss McMasters [illegible] and maybe I don't look respectable enough to drive through the streets beside her. Shouldn't have had the nerve to ask."

Then Iris McMasters did a strange thing. She flung open the door of Harold's coupe and sprang to the ground. "I'm astonished at your saying a nasty thing like that, Andrew Saunderson, she cried wrathfully. "And much as I hate you you've got to take me back to town in your old car. I'll ride with a [illegible] [illegible] but I won't ride with a mean [illegible]"

"Why, Iris, what do you mean?" asked Harold indignantly.

She [illegible] not deign to reply, but climbed into the front seat of the little car where she sat with folded hands. "Drive on back," she commanded curtly, "and send us a good mechanic."

Andrew, meanwhile, had been examining the axle of his wobbly [illegible] car. Harold thought it a pose to cover his embarrassment, but he really seemed to have had his thoughts upon it and not to have considered Iris McMasters and her temper [illegible] at all. Now he looked up and laughed. "Don't bother about the mechanic," he said to Harold. "With a good piece of wire from that fence over there I can patch her up enough to make town. We're to be congratulated that the age of split-rail fences is past!"

And Harold, to save the remaining shreds of his dignity, drove on.

Corilla was astonished when Iris McMasters announced that she had asked Andrew to marry her. "It's being done more and more these days," the girl said, "so don't look so shocked, Mrs. Saunderson." But her voice broke, and Corilla saw that she was near to tears.

"Come," she said sternly, as she [illegible] in her capable hands and wiped [illegible] tears from the [illegible] eyes of Iris. "Have either of my big boys hurt you, Darling? I thought Harold was mad about you."

"[illegible] about me," sobbed Iris, "but not in the way you think! Because it's Andrew I love."

Mother [illegible] Iris [illegible] they looked up to see Andrew gazing upon them, his gray eyes impenetrable behind the thick lenses of his spectacles, dark hair brushed back from his high, white forehead.

"You've come in here to refuse me," gasped Iris, her little face white.

"I can't marry a wealthy woman, Dear," began Andrew, sitting down on the [illegible] between them and grasping a hand of each.

"Pish," exclaimed Corilla. "The money would never mean a thing to you. And I don't see how you can help loving Iris."

Andrew considered this gravely. "I can't," he finally said in husky tones, and he bent and kissed Iris. "I'll marry you if you promise never to reform me."

"I promise," she cried happily, her face transfigured. She held her little head high—like a queen who is crowned.

Corilla wept as she kissed her, too. "What a wife she would have made for my wonderful Harold!" The mother sighed regretfully. "My big, successful son!"

For mother-love is often blind and are not the gods wise to make it so?

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

I HAVE often wondered what "Summer resorts" were for. And, now I KNOW!

* * *

A Summer resort is a place that fills you with such a passionate love of the city, that you will resort to ANYTHING, just to get back to home cooking, hot running water and a soft, quiet bed again!

* * *

A Summer hotel is an institution which inspires you with a beautiful love of HOME!

* * *

There is nothing like a constant diet of canned lobster, soft-shelled crabs, mock turtle soup, dessicated cream and store cake, to make you long for a good old roast beef and honest broiled chops.

* * *

There is nothing like dancing, night after night, in French-heeled slippers, to make you yearn for an old pair of "mules."

* * *

There is nothing like a succession of potatoes parsilade and pommes de terres O'Brien and other carefully disguised forms of food to make you sigh for an honest baked potato

There is nothing like a few weeks of ennui, gossip, relaxation, lounge lizards, and petting parties on a hotel piazza, to make you dream of a quiet evening in the old morris chair under the old shaded reading lamp, opposite the dear old familiar face, behind its newspaper and its brier pipe.

The married flirt with the wandering eye, the sheik with the dancing foot; the "Summer widower" with the weakness for flappers and flattery; the windy old bore with the passion for telling long and pointless stories; the callow youth with the stayslick hair and the self-complacent air; the sentimental and mushy septogenarian; the Babitt with the ingrowing egotism; the husbands who grouch at their wives; the husbands who laugh at their wives; the husbands who flirt with other men's wives—all these make you think tenderly, warmly, rapturously of the nice, clean, solid, sensible He-man you left behind you, grubbing in the city, to pay your hotel bills!

And you catch yourself counting the days until you can pack up and get back HOME—and to Him!

MEDBURY SAYS--- -:- -:- -:- BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

ACCORDING to the Better Business Bureau, thousands of wives are now picking out their husbands' stenographers. Gentlemen may prefer, but they take what they're told.

BEAUTIFUL typists are all right, but a man has to have a few homely girls to get the work done.

ONE fellow had so many pretty dames working for him that his office made Ziegfeld's Follies look like the old people's home.

ANY wife who is jealous of her husband's stenographer was probably his stenographer herself at one time.

SHE doesn't want him to do his home work at the office.

EVERY time he goes into conference, she goes into hysterics.

OF course, there are very few men who deceive their wives, they only think they do.

ONE woman says her husband hasn't taken her out to lunch since she quit working for him.

AS soon as a man catches a street car he either waits for another one or gets a transfer.

HE seems to think that because he belongs to the Rotary Club he has a right to go 'round.

JUST because a woman's beauty is intoxicating, a man doesn't have to be a chaser.

MOST of the stenographers nowadays are wearing bungalow aprons. A smock on the back is worth two on the jaw.

ONE wife said she was so jealous of her husband's secretary that she wanted to pull her hair, but she was afraid the peroxide would ruin her hands.

THE poor fellow was run over last week and had to go to the hospital. His wife was tickled to death; she said she needed the vacation.

THE last time he needed a stenographer she phoned to an employment bureau and told them to send up a two-faced typist and make both of them homely.

WHILE the average business man sticks to the straight and narrow path, his wife is always worrying about the detours.

Any woman may easily rejuvenate her complexion at home by a simple and harmless process of gentle absorption. It has been found that ordinary mercolized wax, applied like cold cream at night, causes the thin veil of lifeless, sallow or blemished cuticle to flake off in almost invisible particles, revealing the fresh, vigorous and beautiful young skin underneath. Naturally this method also removes such surface blemishes as freckles, pimples, liver spots, moth patches, etc. At all drug stores and beauty counters. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty.

DESPAIRED OF EVER HAVING GOOD COMPLEXION

Pimples relieved after trying well known remedy.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 31.—"My skin had been very clear up to a while ago when blackheads and then pimples developed. They spread rapidly and I was terribly annoyed. I used several suggested remedies without good results, and was disgusted and just ready to give up hope of ever having a good complexion again when I saw one of your advertisements. At the same time, a friend recommended Resinol Soap and Ointment so I began to use them. After a few applications my trouble was relieved, and I now keep these products always on hand. They are so soothing and refreshing and I find the ointment so good for the scalp and for chapped hands."—(Signed) Miss Carmel de Felice, E. 1723 Third Avenue.

Why Two Orders Were Lost; New Competition; Remedy

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, July 21.—"A man's enemies are the men of his own house," says the Bible. Today an industry's enemies are not always those within the industry, but outsiders, producers of competitive materials. A very recent happening will drive this home.

* * *

THE City of Roanoke, Va., one familiar with the facts tells me, decided to replace two of its bridges. At Roanoke is located one of the country's largest structural steel fabricating plants, employing 1,500 local citizens.

B. C. Forbes

Many reasons, including the fact that the selection of steel for the bridges would give employment to these 1,500 local inhabitants, made it reasonable to suppose that steel would be the material chosen. Further, the bids received showed that in one case a concrete bridge would cost $100,000 more than a steel bridge, and in the other case $80,000 more.

THE CONCRETE industry, however, has awakened to the value of advertising and of aggressive selling, whereas the steel industry has neglected to use a generous amount of printer's ink to extol the merits of steel and to convince the public of the advisability of employing it wherever possible.

The more alert concrete men were on hand to back up the industry's advertising. They worked through the women's clubs and various civic associations in an effort to prove that concrete would afford a more artistic design. Their efforts were successful. The public demand for concrete proved so great that those in charge of the selection of the material were powerless to resist it. Concrete went into the bridges at a total cost of $180,000 over the cost of steel.

TAKE another case.

Some time ago proposals for a South Carolina-Georgia interstate bridge over the Savannah River were advertised. Plans and specifications were prepared for both a steel and a concrete bridge. The general condition stated that if the greater cost of the concrete bridge did not exceed $35,000, the cost of the two types of bridges would be considered as equal, and either type could be selected for the bridge.

When the bids were opened, it was found that the lowest bid for the concrete bridge was $49,000 higher than the lowest bid for the steel bridge. The steel men, supposing that the low bidder would be awarded the contract, left the scene.

Then this happened: The extra $14,000, the excess of the low bid for concrete over the stipulated permissible differential of $35,000, was raised and offered to offset this additional cost. This $14,000 was paid by the commissioners of Elbert County, Ga., and Anderson County, S. C. The public consciousness of concrete again proved the decisive factor.

A BUSINESS man who follows events very closely writes, anent the recent column telling of the organization and work of the American Institute of Steel Construction, Incorporated:

"A great number of the large industries of the country have recognized the importance of the public's attitude and have organized on a co-operative basis to support national advertising campaigns and the aggressive merchandising found essential to the building up of such an attitude. Among these industries are the cement industry, the common brick manufacturers, the prune growers, laundrymen, lumbermen, the paint manufacturers and even the producers of sauerkraut.

"A short time ago sauerkraut as an article of diet was a joke. During the last three years that condition, largely mental, has been changed. Today thousands of American families eat, enjoy and thrive on sauerkraut. This change was not an accident. The industry organized; it appropriated several hundred thousand dollars and by constructive group advertising increased the consumption of sauerkraut over 20 per cent annually."

THE WEEKLY pay envelope can procure only a limited number of things. The total income of the people, too, has a limit. Competition for a share of this money has become intensely keen and more varied than ever before. The merchants, the manufacturers, the industries that are going to get the lion's share are the ones who bid the most effectively and insistently for it. It won't flow in uninvited.

BALANCE

Balance in Investment Makes for Safety of Principal and Stability of Income

A TRIM ship is not a result of haphazard loading. It is rather a product of skill and experience in stowing away its cargo, piece by piece, so as to give the proper balance for smooth and steady sailing.

A well-balanced investment list is not a result of chance accumulation. It is rather a product of careful and systematic purchase under the helpful guidance of a reliable and experienced investment house.

Balance to the investor means a safe principal and stable income. It comes from a scientific distribution of risks and adapting the investment fund as a whole to the particular needs of each investor.

Perhaps the safety of your funds may be increased by a redistribution of invested capital. The OLD COLONY CORPORATION has rebuilt the structure of many investment lists along lines of better balance.

HARKNESS BIG STOCKHOLDER IN ST. PAUL

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is said to be one of the ten stocks most largely held in New England. A list of the 20 largest stockholders in this railroad, however, shows brokerage firms are the largest holders, several well-known Boston Stock Exchange houses appearing in the list. Included is the name of only one individual holder, Edward S. Harkness. The Harkness holdings have not changed during the past year.

E. S. Harkness

Edward S. Harkness, Standard Oil magnate, is well known as a college benefactor in New England. In 1925 he gave $100,000 to Wellesley. His best known gift was that of a million dollars in 1924 for the department of dramatic art at Yale. This gift resulted in Prof. George Pierce Baker's leaving Harvard after 36 years of service to go to Yale.

Individual rubber trees have been made to produce 70 lbs. of rubber in a year, as a result of bud-grafting experiments in the Dutch West Indies, thus quadrupling the yield. Someone seems to be getting ahead of Mr. Edison, who is known to be working on the rubber problem. F. R. Henderson, president of the New York Rubber Exchange, says the new method of bud grafting will reduce cost of crude rubber in New York from present price of 35 cents a pound to less than 10 cents.

It is to be hoped lower rubber prices are to be achieved through increased production, which would be beneficial all around. Usually such reports have to be taken with a grain of salt. Remember the stories about a synthetic oil that was to avert all possibility of an oil shortage? Discoverer was quoted as admitting cost of production would be prohibitive until present oil sources are exhausted.

W. L. Barnhart, resident vice-president of National Surety Co., says forgery is America's fastest growing crime. He attributed its growth to carelessness of business men, as well as to wave of crookedness. Bankers, he said, estimated annual loss at $200,000,000. This comes in the face of a chain of rapidly increasing inventions designed to foil figures. Boston banks from time to time issue due warnings.

Popular ownership campaigns by the public utilities have all been notably successful. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey is planning another for the Fall. As a result of its various campaigns, and the sale of other classes of stock, the company has increased the total number of individual stockholders from 2,763 in 1921 to 55,253 on Dec. 31, 1926, eliminating all duplications. The stock is sold for cash or on the installment plan of $10 down and $10 monthly a share.

Electric railways in general continue to suffer from changed transportation conditions. Puget Sound Electric Railway, which is controlled by the Puget Sound Power & Light Co., is notifying holders of its first consolidated mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds that the company will be compelled to default the next interest coupon due Aug. 1. There are $2,427,000 of these bonds outstanding in the hands of the public.

OLD COLONY'S GROWTH SEEN

Old Colony Trust Company has just published a most interesting booklet under the title "The Growth of New England's Largest Trust Company." It takes its readers back to 1890 when this bank opened for business in an obscure office at No. 50 State street, Boston. Its staff consisted of only three men and deposits totaled $219,000. Two customers who made up the first day's business were both members of the staff.

In 1892 the bank was moved to the Ames building and in 1909 they occupied four floors of this building, finally taking over the entire structure.

In 1902 the first branch was opened at Temple place and since then a total of four branches has been opened in other parts of the city.

From 13 officers and employes in 1890, the staff has grown to 1,045 in 1927, and deposits have been built up to nearly $182,000,000, which places this bank among the first 30 of the country in this respect. The banking department has over 29,000 individual and corporation banking accounts, and the transfer department is agent for 232 companies. The trust department of the bank has grown from an organization handling nearly $100,000 in trust and trust business in 1900 to over $136,000,000 in 1927. Savings have increased from $1,600,000 in 1890 to over $26,000,000 to date.

Owned and controlled by the Old Colony Trust Company is the Old Colony Corporation, which carries on a large investment business with its main office in the bank building and with other offices located in the four city branches of the bank. The corporation also has offices in New York, Providence, Portland, Hartford, Worcester and Springfield.

The report to the Bank Commissioner at close of business June 30, 1927, shows a capitalization of $15,000,000 with a surplus of $11,000,000 and undivided earnings of over $5,000,000. Deposits are recorded at over $182,000,000, which is an increase of over 43 per cent. since 1915.

$200,000 CONTRACT IS AWARDED WESTINGHOUSE

A contract amounting to about $200,000 has just been placed with the Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co. by Stone & Webster covering electrical apparatus for the new West Springfield substation of the United Electric Light Company. The contract includes two 15,000 KVA transformers and four large oil circuit breakers.

GULF STATES UTILITIES WILL BUILD A BIG UNIT

Gulf States Utilities Company, a subsidiary of Engineers Public Service Company, has signed a contract for the immediate installation of an additional 40,000 h. p. unit in its Neches power station. This station, located near Beaumont, Tex., is a baseload station supplying with electricity a network of high tension transmission lines extending more than 200 miles along the Gulf Coast.

The first unit in the Neches station of 27,000 h. p. was put in service last Fall, and the rapid increase in demand for electricity due to the growth of territory served, together with additional extensions of the transmission system now planned or under construction, make it necessary to proceed at once to more than double the capacity of this station. Engineering and construction are being done by Stone & Webster, Inc.

When the Airmen Come

Show "Old Glory!"

It will be many a long day before another city is favored as Boston will be on Saturday by the presence at one time of so many of America's greatest airmen.

Call the roll!

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, of the "Spirit of Saint Louis" and the first flight from New York to Paris.

LIEUT. LESTER MAITLAND, U. S. A., and LIEUT. ALBERT HEGENBERGER, U. S. A., first flight from San Francisco to Honolulu.

CLARENCE D. CHAMBERLIN, pilot of Charles A. Levine's "Columbia," first flight from New York to Germany.

COMMANDER RICHARD E. BYRD, of the "America," New York to the Coast of France.

America's aces! The biggest day aviation has known in these parts since that memorable first meet at Squantum, seventeen years ago!

His Honor the Mayor suggests that we honor these intrepid young men by showing our colors, the Red, the White and the Blue.

The right idea! The proper spirit! A good suggestion.

Let us begin on Friday, when Lindy comes to town, and be all dressed up on Saturday.

Let Old Glory float from every home, every schoolhouse, every place of business, every office, every public building in Boston.

We are going to have thousands upon thousands of visitors, who will remember this occasion while they live.

They will be pouring into town on every railroad train, in every trolley car, in every bus, in motorcars innumerable.

Let's show them how excited this old town can become upon occasion; how stirred, and lively and enthusiastic Bostonians can be over the Right People and at the Right Time.

WHY They Come

To Encourage the Development of Airports

Lindbergh, Maitland, Hegenberger, Chamberlin, Byrd, Noville, Acosta and Balchen come to us in response to urgent invitations from the Governor of the Commonwealth and the Mayor of Boston.

These are young Americans who have accomplished great things. Boston desired to see and cheer them.

But their visit has another purpose.

This will be Colonel Lindbergh's third stopping place in a tour of all the States, in the course of which he will visit 75 cities.

The Lindbergh tour is undertaken primarily to stimulate interest in aviation and encourage the use of existing aerial facilities for mail, freight, express, passenger and other services.

His visits, moreover, will encourage the development of municipal airports and other aerial transportation facilities, such as communication systems and the lighting of airways.

It is hoped that the visit of the airmen to Boston, and Col. Lindbergh's appearances in Hartford, Providence, Portland, Concord, N. H., and Springfield, Vt., will increase the number of airway facilities in this section.

More than 50 new airports have been established in the United States in the past year. By the end of 1927, about 1,000 airports will dot the country from coast to coast and from the Gulf to Canada.

Buffalo has constructed a 518-acre airport and equipped it at a cost of $727,255.

Chicago has laid out a great airport with an eight-direction runway system, complete night lighting and most modern airport equipment.

Cleveland continues to improve its well-designed airport, paying particular attention to better drainage and adding hangars and new equipment.

Portland, Ore., is using Swan Island for its new airport, which will accommodate land and sea planes.

San Francisco is developing a modern air terminal, to accommodate traffic from transcontinental and Pacific Coast airlines.

Altogether, there are 864 fields in existence, including 267 municipal, 163 commercial and private airports, 124 Department of Commerce "intermediate" fields, 81 Army, Navy and National Guard fields, one Treasury Department field and one Department of Agriculture field.

BOSTON'S airport was among the first. It must be every citizen's job to see that it is placed among the best.

A Special Commission on Aviation is investigating the subject. This commission will report to the next Legislature. Public support of a determined character may be necessary if the recommendations of the Commission are to be made effective by legislative act.

There ARE those who believe that the coming generation will take to the air and that the present generation must prepare the way.

However that may be, any city of the first class which neglects to provide an airport equal to the best is soon going to fall as far back in the procession as the livery stablekeeper who for fifteen years wagered with himself that "one of these days them gas buggies is going to be drove off the roads."

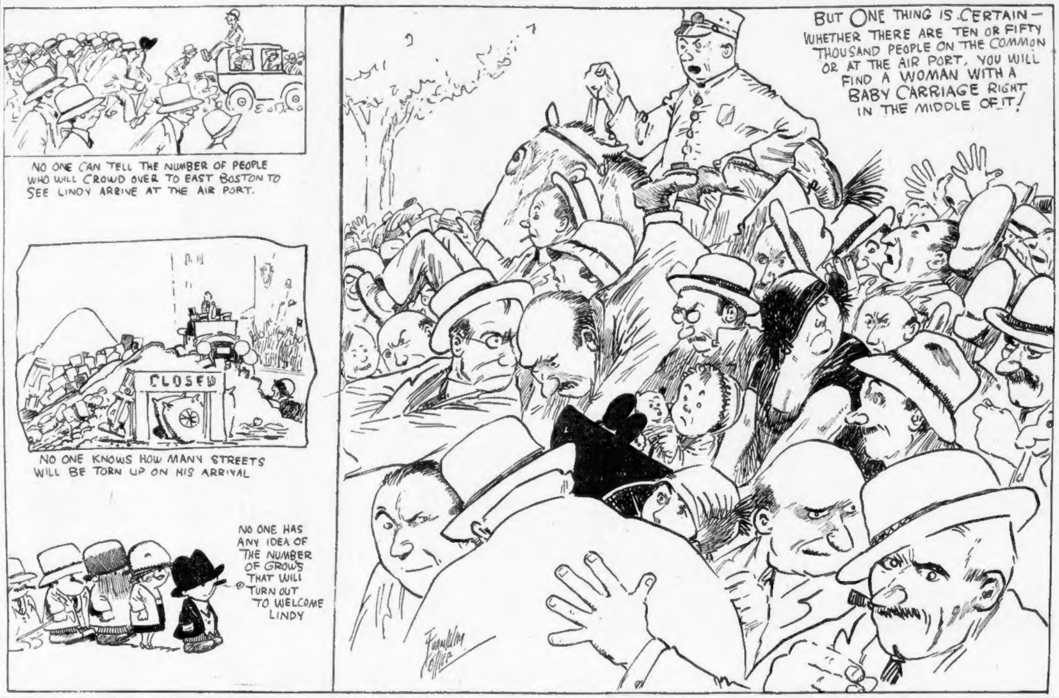
Keep in touch with the activities of the Special Commission on Aviation. Be ready to help, when called upon.

"Musty" Would Fit

The world will chuckle over the changing of the name Constantinople to Mustapha Kemal, in honor of Turkey's first President and Dictator.

When rechristened, Constantinople, formerly called in honor of Emperor Constantine of the Byzantines, will probably be called "Musty" for short, a singularly appropriate nickname for a city with the Turkish capital's very peculiar atmospheric conditions.

One Thing You Can Depend Upon -:- By Franklin Collier



NO ONE CAN TELL THE NUMBER OF PEOPLE WHO WILL CROWD OVER TO EAST BOSTON TO SEE LINDY ARRIVE AT THE AIR PORT.
CLOSED
NO ONE KNOWS HOW MANY STREETS WILL BE TORN UP ON HIS ARRIVAL
NO ONE HAS ANY IDEA OF THE NUMBER OF GROWS THAT WILL TURN OUT TO WELCOME LINDY
BUT ONE THING IS CERTAIN — WHETHER THERE ARE TEN OR FIFTY THOUSAND PEOPLE ON THE COMMON OR AT THE AIR PORT, YOU WILL FIND A WOMAN WITH A BABY CARRIAGE RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF IT!
Franklin Collier

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR GOOD ROADS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

CALIFORNIA has made an agreeable gesture in favor of Senator Breed's bills for the perfecting of its highway system.

These bills propose to tax gasoline 3 cents a gallon. One cent of this three cents is to be spent exclusively for new highways, one cent for highway construction and maintenance and the other cent is applicable also to highways.

There is no substitute for good roads. They are the basis of a State's prosperity. They not only enable farmers to carry their truck easily, but they attract visitors from other States. No more alluring advertisement can be made than that there are plenty of good highways over which to see the beauties of nature.

California is noted for its highways, but of course there is room for improvement.

Good roads take money and they take constant work. No highway keeps itself. No pavement can endure in good order unless it is being constantly repaired.

There is not as much repairing necessary on the Pacific Coast as elsewhere in the country because there are no successive thawings and frost with which to break up the surface of the pavement. No matter how bad the weather may be overhead the roads are always passable.

Civilization means good roads. It is not enough to have a complete railway system. These railways need feeders and good highways ought to be carried into every part of the country.

Much has been done recently to alleviate conditions of country life, to relieve its isolation and to make it more habitable.

Not the telephone, nor the radio, nor anything else, however, is comparable in this respect to a good road.

On a good road the family can launch their automobile and are speedily transported where they will.

DON'T STAY IN A RUT IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

IF THERE are no good prospects in the job you are holding, why stick to it?

If you are not sufficiently interested in your job to give it your whole attention and your best efforts, you will not get far.

While filling one job you should not be regretting the necessity for remaining in it to the exclusion of one you think you would like better.

You can use some of your leisure time in preparing yourself for a better place and still be just to your employer.

But if you are honorable during working hours, you will give your whole attention to the work you are following.

But if you feel that your best efforts will not advance you to command more than you now receive, don't stay in the rut.

Other men seem to have more congenial companions and surroundings and they don't work as hard as you do.

But what has that to do with your pay envelope?

You need money to meet general expenses and if you get a commensurate sum for your work, give your best to it.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

HOT Summer days when the horses suffer, city squares are manned by watchmen to give aid to thirsty horses. Down in MERRIMAC SQUARE is a guard of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He is eagle eyed for cruel drivers. Let a driver check his horse as they pass the water and the guard reports him.

• • •

Trouble is had with the feeding of horses, also. The MERRIMAC SQUARE guard reports many times the horse is being fed a combination of straw, chaff and dust instead of oats. Then is when the guard delivers a speech to the public on the subject of mean, stingy, miserly drivers who ought to be behind the bars.

• • •

"As I tell all the young traffic officers, a lot of these cars belong to bootleggers," we were informed by the M. S. P. C. A. guard in one square. He further informed us that from 150 to 160 horses a day are watered there throughout the Summer.

• • •

The guards we inspected seemed to have a good command over the language. From this we suspect that the first test for an applicant is correct pronunciation and spelling of the organization's name.

• • •

One fad among lively boys now is to put a couple of wings on a four wheeled cart, arrange some kind of propeller, and then paint "Spirit of Somerville," or "Spirit of South Boston." Some of the contraptions are quite clever.

Once "crashing the gate" was supposed to be about the most exciting and pleasant social diversion. But young men and women are now trying another mild pastime. They enter a well known restaurant or club where celebrities of the stage, musical world, politics, art and other lines may be found. Then they send the waiter or boy to ask Mr. So and So "Won't he please step over for a minute."

The man thus asked usually comes over, wondering what is wanted. And then our seekers for self glory keep him there for as long as possible on any talk that will keep the man with them.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"I WILL lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help." Psalms 121-1.

I lived once in a desert country.

Before the memory of man a great sea had covered that space, but now it lay flat and desolate.

It was neither quiet nor empty where I lived. We were working a mine and men swarmed up and down the shafts and over the dumps. The pumps and hoists made a great racket—there was the constant rattle of chain, crash of falling rock, clang of drills. But all that noise and bustle could not shut out the glare of those blistering barrens or lift the slow, deadly weight of that flatness.

After a while, the flatness seemed to be sprawling on top of your spirit like some great, gray monster, pressing you down and down, squeezing out all joy and hope.

A very terrible place! I do not know how I could have endured it without the hills.

The hills rose abruptly from the desert in a great circle and by day they were veiled in stinging gray dust. But with the evening they drew themselves up and away from the miserable plain where we lived.

With the evening these hills seemed to move and grow tall, to even float a little above the earth. And, as they rose, they broke into color like a song. Their gullies brimmed with shadows blue as wine. Their crests were flaming topaz on the sunset sea. Hot floods of rose and copper drenched their slopes, their cliffs were swimming in an amber foam.

Then the night came. The scarlet deepened into amethyst and indigo. The tall hills shouldered, dark as sentinels against the star-strewn sky.

Those hills were color and song in that sad land, and hope and healing to our weary souls. We lifted up our eyes when evening came and were made clean and free and whole again.

Life often seems to me like that flat blistered place beneath those blessed hills.

One must have hills—something in life that's tall and beautiful, to which the mind can rise. Some fine ambition, leaping high above the sordid ruck of our necessity. Some glimpse of lovely fancy now and then, as lovely as a rose-tipped hill beneath a silver star. Some flaming hope, some noble ideal to stand guard throughout the night—

One must have hills, to which the mind can lift, tall hills that hold new strength for weary souls.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WHAT is your part as the swift moments fly, gladly or sadly, oh, friend, do you go? Do you leave courage and hope flaming high, do you plant visions of rapture or woe? Little you think of the role that you play, careless, perhaps, of the people you meet, yet you are living your part day by day, making earth dreary or making it sweet. Yours and yours only the labor can be; not for another to hinder or aid, yours to enlighten man, make him more free, fit him for facing what comes, unafraid. Yours to bring happiness if you but choose, yours to plant seeds bearing cheer and delight; this is the power you only can use, making the way for your brothers more bright.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Society has this good at least, that it lessens our conceit by teaching us our insignificance, and making us acquainted with our betters.—Thackeray.

Men do not like hard work, but every man has an exceptional respect for tillage, and a feeling that this is the original calling of his race.—Emerson.

How poor are they that have no patience?
What wound did ever heal but by degrees?

—Shakespeare

Be not afraid of greatness. Some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them.

—Shakespeare.
